Foolish Farouk Flees Egypt

I read in the paper where King Farouk had arrived at Naples on the royal yacht and had most democratically supervised the unloading of the family baggage. It was not a mean task, either, since there were 240 trunks and an almost equal number of cases of champagne, whisky and wine... fit for a king, even a phony one such as Farouk, whom the army he had cheated and helped to lose a war, ordered into exile as the people rejoiced.

In 1945 and 1946 I had interviews with King Farouk at Abidin palace in Cairo. He was greatly put-out in 1945 because Time magazine had just referred to him as "Fat, Foolish Farouk," and it pained the more because it was true, as current facts so well demonstrate. He was bitterly anti-British then and even worse in 1946.

Blindness

It was most unfortunate from the British viewpoint that Sir Miles Lampson (Lord Killearn), the British High Commissioner, was such an inflexible man, apparently without even the slightest understanding of the pressure of nationalism, believing the one answer to be troops and restrictive measures. Even the Egyptians who were friendly to the English mourned the fact that Lord Killearn was so austere and unapproachable a man, with no eyes for what was going on about him. There is no telling what might have happened had there been in Egypt, in those years, a more able man and one more aware of the forces loosed in the world.

Farouk came to the throne in May, 1936. He was 16 years old, and in an English school, when his father, King Fouad, died. It was perhaps inevitable that he should have followed the direction of his father's friends, and they were the exploiters of Egypt.

By the time he was old enough to know better, he was trapped. He had given himself over to being a playboy. His closest, unofficial associates, were men with like morals and character. They liked driving the big car about at night, visiting the night spots, picking up girls for the king's pleasure.

The Wafd party of opposition (Wafd means "delegation," and dates to an earlier Nationalist delegation which sought independence from Britain through the League of Nations), was thrown out of office and the king ignored parliament and the Constitution when he chose. The Wafd came back in February, 1942, when Farouk and his friends refused to form a government and began to lean toward the Germans. The British ran two tanks to the palace gate, and placed troops about it. The king capitulated, appointing a Prime Minister from the Wafd party, which promptly threw itself on the side of the Allies and from that time on the Nazis had no help from Egypt. But Farouk never forgave the Wafd or the British. The frustration of his situation seemed to drive him to greater excesses. He divorced his wife, sister of the Shah of Persia, and began to shop about, taking finally as a bride a 16-year-old girl already engaged to a government worker.

Corruption

The hunger, wretchedness and misery of the people increased. The war with Palestine came on and Egypt's numerically superior army was humiliated by a sound defeat at the hands of the Israeli militia. It was learned the king himself had profited by the death of his soldiers and the defeat of his army, as had his friends. They had manipulated contracts and supplied their troops with ammunition which wouldn't shoot, planes that wouldn't fly, and artillery which was obsolete and inadequate.

The Wafd party was swept back into power but it succumbed to patronage hunger and the bribery of its officials by the king's party.

Here was a country with as much fertile land as France; with much raw materials, including oil and great deposits of iron and minerals and yet it was hungry, diseased and illiterate.

The army has driven out the fabulously wealthy king—and is trying to form a government free of the old parasites. Fat, foolish Farouk is headed for Cairo. He is perfectly suited to it.

Austria Plea Asks End of Occupation

Sovereignty Sought In Treaty Absence

By WALTER H. WAGGONER

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, July 31—Austria appealed to the United States today for support of a move to end the occupation of Austrian territory by the troops of the Big Four powers.

A memorandum was delivered this afternoon to the State department by Dr. Wilfried Platzer, Austrian charge d'affaires here, as the first step toward seeking United Nations action that might restore Austria to her full and rightful sovereignty in the absence of a treaty.

The memorandum and seven attachments which will go to each member of the United Nations emphasized that Austria's independence and freedom from the United States, British, French and Russian occupation forces has been assured by numerous documents and statements by the four occupying powers, and that the troops remain there only because of the cold war.

WORLD POLITICS

"The reasons which led the four occupying powers to change their original intention to end the occupation of Austria as soon as a stable Austrian government has been set up are attributable to world politics and influenced by the contrasting political and ideological concepts of the East and West," the memorandum stated.

The four powers have been struggling in the negotiation of an Austrian treaty since a commission was set up in Vienna in May, 1947. Since then, after several prolonged and fruitless meetings, a proposed formal and detailed treaty has been replaced by a so-called "abbreviated treaty" of only eight articles designed chiefly to restore Austria to her desired and promised independence.

NOTE UNANSWERED

The short treaty draft was proposed by the three Western powers, with Austrian endorsement, in a note to Moscow on March 13. The Soviet Union has not yet answered the note, although a reminder has since been sent.

The Vienna government has held that a so-called "state treaty" is not required to establish Austrian independence because that has al-

GOP Platform Will Beat Ike, Morse Warns

WASHINGTON, July 31—Sen. Wayne Morse, outspoken Oregon Republican, charged today that the GOP platform "is out of date by half a century and will cost General Eisenhower the presidential election unless rewritten."

Morse said the platform adopted by the Chicago Republican National convention "takes us back to the day of McKinley." (President William McKinley was elected in 1896 and re-elected in 1900.)

The Oregon Republican urged Eisenhower and Sen. Richard M. Nixon (Rep., Calif.), the general's vice-presidential running mate, to alter the platform during the coming presidential election campaign.

"They will have to rewrite the whole program because they cannot stand on that platform and win," Morse said.

Morse said the platform does not match the party's presidential and vice-presidential candidates because the platform was

1st Contract Is Awarded On A-Powered Carrier

By AUSTIN STEVENS

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, July 31—The first step toward development of an atomic-powered aircraft carrier was taken today with award of a contract for work on a large-sized nuclear power plant to the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

As is customary when atomic energy contracts concern military weapons or equipment, no details of the project carrier were released either by the Navy or the Atomic Energy Commission.

The significance of the announcement was considered to be the further indication that developmental work on nuclear power plants had gone ahead with unexpected speed. Work on nuclear powered submarines is only several years old and some officials in the Navy are so optimistic about progress in that field that they talk of launching the first such submarine some time next year.

The award of the power plant contract probably means that a thermal type reactor will be started. It is this type that Westinghouse is constructing at the Argonne National Atomic Laboratory. The other type of nuclear power plant, the so-called intermediate, is a project of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y.

It has been commonly thought that development of a power plant for a submarine was largely an experiment to test the feasibility of such power. By working on the relatively small plant the scientists were expected to be able to clear the way for the larger type plant.

Dixie Democrats Line Up for Adlai As Rumor of Ike Ticket Fizzles Out

Southern Democratic leaders appeared to be ready Thursday to support the national party ticket in November as talk of an independent Democratic move to support General Eisenhower in Dixie died.

These were the latest developments:

1. Georgia's Governor Talmadge, who earlier said he might "go fishing" election day, said he probably would vote for the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket but that he was not enthusiastic about the Democratic platform.

2. Senators Robertson of Virginia and Russell Long of Louisiana each announced at Washington they would vote the straight Democratic ticket. Robertson had some caustic words for the party platform but said he could best serve Virginia and the Southern viewpoint by staying with the party.

Long declared that any attempt to put Eisenhower on the Democratic ticket in Louisiana would be "very deceptive and immoral."

3. Attorney General Eugene Cook of Georgia said he thinks a rumored move to place a slate of independent Democratic electors pledged to Eisenhower on the November ballot in this state "has completely fizzled out."

Cook added that he hoped it has fizzled out and he hoped it would not recur.

The attorney general said he voted against the platform at the Chicago convention but believes the national ticket represents a happy compromise and declared: "I'm going to vote the Democratic ticket and I think it would

Oust British From Egypt, Wafd Cries

West Attacked, Arab Fires Fanned

CAIRO, Friday, Aug. 1—(INS)—Egypt's ruling party today issued a manifesto calling for evacuation of all British troops, rejection of the Western sponsored Middle East Defense Command, and strengthening of the anti-Western Arab League.

The statement, issued by the nationalistic Wafd party, outlined what it termed the policy of Gen. Mohammed Naguib, Egyptian "strongman" who ousted King Farouk and grabbed power in last week's army coup.

NO DEPARTURE

The manifesto, first clear statement of what direction the new Egyptian government will take, make it plain there will be no departure from the anti-Western policies of ex-King Farouk.

It continued the dispute touched off last fall when Egypt abrogated its treaties with Britain and demanded Britain quit the strategic Suez Canal zone and the jointly-administered Sudan.

The manifesto declared there will be no negotiations with Britain until British troops are evacuated.

In demanding British withdrawal, the manifesto also went down the line in advocating other anti-Western measures—strengthening of the Arab League and the bloc of African-Asian nations which has been acting loosely within the UN.

UNITY OF NILE

It called for "unity of the Nile Valley" to be determined by a free plebiscite in the Sudan.

At the same time, Gen. Naguib issued the text of his ultimatum demanding Farouk's abdication. The ultimatum, issued to the ruler last Saturday, charged "mismanagement of state affairs."

Editor's Note: Previous stories from Egypt following the overthrow of Farouk's government have not made clear the exact role of the Wafd party under the new regime. Only last Monday, however, it was announced the Wafdists favored Naguib. Whether he favors the party is not definitely known.

Gen. Collins Says UN Won Korean Aims

FT. BENNING, Ga., July 31—Army Chief of Staff J. Lawton Collins declared here today that UN forces in Korea have the strength to mount a new attack if it was considered worthwhile.

But the UN has achieved its objectives and its broad purpose in Korea—throwing back the North Korean invader, said the 56-year-old Army chief.

General Collins praised Fort Benning as "the heart and soul of the infantry," but he said no expansion is due for the post at present and no division will be assigned here immediately.

He flew here today for a two-day visit and inspection of infantry training and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps program.

"I believe the ROTC, the entire reserve program and the National Guard are vital to the defense of the United States," he said.

"The great importance of the ROTC is that it is one of the principal sources of young officers," he said.

"I cannot tell you whether we will reach our objective of 50 NATO divisions this year... but I can say that Germany will add much to the strength of the NATO force."

The general called Fort Benning's influence on the entire Army, and its technical and tactical skill very profound.

State Revenue At $15,655,700 For First Month

The State of Georgia is off to an excellent start in the new fiscal year from a revenue standpoint, with July tax collections from all sources running $784,716 ahead of July, 1951.

Unofficial figures in the State Department of Revenue Thursday showed the state collected $15,655,700 in July, as compared with $14,870,984 in July, 1951.

The state's three per cent sales tax accounted for more than $8,000,000 of the total revenue. Gasoline taxes accounted for another $4,635,726.

July revenue was down considerably from a month ago when June collections totalled $20,420,046, but officials pointed out this was to be expected since July is normally one of the lightest revenue months in the year.

Russia Asked Fate of PWs By Red Cross

TORONTO, July 31—The Chinese Nationalist delegation walked out of the 18th International Red Cross conference today in protest against the seating of Chinese Communists.

East-West bitterness broke wide open as Red Cross officials denounced Russian and Communist satellite speeches as propaganda and "a disgrace" and asked Russia point blank to account for prisoners she captured in World War II.

"If many of them have died, let it be for God's sake be known that they have died—when, where and how," said Paul Ruegger of Switzerland, president of the international committee of the Red Cross at Geneva.

Emergency Milk Parley Set Tuesday

By ALBERT RILEY

Charles Duncan, chairman of the State Milk Control Board, said Thursday that a meeting of approximately 1,000 milk producers from throughout Georgia will be held here next Tuesday to seek means of alleviating an acute milk shortage caused by an unprecedented drouth.

The emergency meeting will be held at 11 a. m., in the House of Representatives chamber at the Capitol.

Duncan said Georgia pastures are "80 per cent gone" because of prolonged hot, dry weather, and that milk production in this state is off 30 per cent.

When schools open in September the demand for milk will rise.

Emergency Parley Called In Nashville

By JIM PINSON

Georgia agricultural experts Thursday were summoned by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan to a nine-state meeting in Nashville, Tenn., Friday as the Federal Government initiated emergency measures for the relief of drouth-stricken farmers of the Southeast.

The conference, which is scheduled to consider primarily the plight of livestock herds in the drouth area, comes on the heels of a Department of Agriculture order designating Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky and Mississippi as disaster loan areas.

The Farmers Home Administration placed Georgia on a drouth disaster status Thursday after state officials of the FHA telegraphed a request to Washington citing heavy losses to corn, peanut and truck crops and severe damage to pasture lands.

The order authorizes the FHA, a unit of the Department of Agriculture, to make loans to farmers who have suffered substantial losses.

Allies Demand Reds Report on 1,926 Prisoners

MUNSAN, Aug. 1—(Friday)—(INS)—A complete accounting "without delay" of 1,926 Allied personnel held by the Reds was demanded at Panmunjom Thursday.

The demand was made by Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied truce delegate, in a note to North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the senior Red delegate, delivered at a meeting of staff officers during the recessed armistice talks.

The note added 45 names to seven previous lists submitted by the Allies, making a total of 1,926 prisoners who have not been included in official Communist reports. They are persons named in Communist broadcasts and publications or identified by other sources as prisoners.

No progress was made at the meeting of staff officers, who will continue their daily sessions until the plenary armistice conferences are resumed Sunday.

Bonn Socialists Call For Unity Before Arms

By DREW MIDDLETON

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

BONN, Germany, July 31—The Social Democratic Party, preparing for its convention in September and next year's general election, today presented a program emphasizing the urgent need for Germany's reunification through negotiations with the Soviet Union and special efforts to regain Germany's lost markets in Eastern Europe.

The program stressed the growing gap between the Socialists, leading opposition party, and the coalition government of Chancellor Adenauer over what course the federal republic must take in the future.

Where Adenauer talks of reunifying Germany once the federal republic is rearmament and the West is strong, the Socialists demand union of Germany now and pledge themselves to fight for negotiations with the East and a peace treaty with a united Germany.

The party also proposes that the capital be transferred from Bonn to Berlin and demands that the Western sectors of that city be given federal rights, including full voting powers for members in the Bundestag.

This portion of the program shocks and possibly frightens the Rhinelanders, Westphalians and Saxons, who dominate the present conservative government. To them Berlin is synonymous with East German socialism and all the stresses and strains of the cold war, which can be forgotten temporarily in placid Bonn.

The Socialist Party is convinced that Dr. Adenauer's program of rearmament, part of his general policy of integration with the West, will prove unpopular with the German masses. The Socialists' program stresses that although the military power of the East is being checked by the superior war potential of the West, the cold war cannot be decided through German rearmament.

The Socialists seek a wider European confederation than the "Little Europe" of the six Schuman plan countries and points their sights at the laudable but distant target of democratic unification and development of all Europe.

The party will campaign under the vivid slogan of "Unification Now" rather than Dr. Adenauer's more prosaic "unification later when we are stronger." Unification, the Socialist platform declares, is only possible through negotiations with the Russians on free elections in all zones and Berlin, and the party will "fight for such negotiations and the conclusion of a peace treaty with a reunited Germany."

Migration Group To Aid Relocation of 2,500 Jews

By MICHAEL L. HOFFMAN

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

GENEVA, July 31—The Intergovernmental Migration Committee will assist in the resettlement in Israel of 2,500 European Jews, officials announced today. An agreement with the Israeli government provides that the committee will handle the transport of these immigrants, while Jewish organizations, possibly the Jewish Agency for Palestine, will make the pre-embarkation arrangements.

Only those Jews who have left their country of citizenship after tomorrow and only those going to Israel for permanent settlement will be eligible for this program.

This is the migration committee's first operation on behalf of emigrants to Israel, as well as its first program directed specifically to the problems of newly arriving refugees. Pressure on Jews in Communist countries is converting more and more of them to refugee status.

At the same time, arrangements for the emigration of Jews to Israel by agreement with the Communist governments are getting harder and harder to establish.

Hugh Gibson, director of the Migration Committee, estimated today that the cost of this program would be $108,000.

In general, the movement of Europeans from their overcrowded continent to new homes in the Western Hemisphere and other suitable parts of the world is too slow for Europe's social and political needs, in the opinion of international migration experts here.

Posse Hunts Head, Hands Of Slain Girl

YUKON, Okla., July 31—(INS)—Officers sifted meager clues today in an effort to get a lead into the mutilation slaying of a young girl whose headless body was found near Yukon yesterday with the letters "R-A-T" carved on the stomach.

Meanwhile, a posse searched grimly for the head and hands missing from the body of the girl who has been listed as Brunette X. One foot had been partly severed from the ankle. Around the other ankle was a small red belt which had been used to drag the body up the ravine in which it was found.

It was undetermined whether sex was the motive in the gruesome killing.

The girl whose age was estimated at between 13 and 16, apparently had been dumped from a car on a bridge which crosses the ravine seven miles southwest of Yukon. Authorities seek a blood-stained automobile.

As the investigation continued, the Canadian County sheriff's office at El Reno was swamped with calls from parents in several southwestern and midwestern states who reported missing daughters and were anxious about the identity of Brunette X.

Appeals Court Shelves Sentence of Sleepy GI

WASHINGTON, July 31—(INS)—The U. S. Court of Military Appeals today set aside the conviction of a young soldier sentenced to 10 years at hard labor because he fell asleep while on guard duty in Korea.

The three-man civilian panel ordered a complete rehearing in the case of 21-year-old Pfc. Warren G. McConnell of Alloway, N. J., who claimed he had been forced to go without sleep for 72 hours before he finally dozed off.

But this claim never entered into the court's deliberations. It reversed the infantryman's conviction on the grounds that the law officer assigned to his court-martial in Korea had taken an improper part in the case by discussing the sentence with the court.

The court-martial originally sentenced McConnell to a dishonorable discharge and total forfeiture of pay as well as 10 years at hard labor. While upholding the conviction, a review officer later dropped the discharge penalty and his action was affirmed by the Army Judge Advocate General's office.

Dorsey McConnell, the soldier's father, charged last March that "raw Army justice" had been dealt his son. But the Pentagon denied that McConnell had been forced to stay awake for 72 hours and said he allowed an armed enemy soldier to slip past his post.

Today's ruling means that McConnell may never be retried, since his case was sent back to the review officer in Korea. He may decide to drop it.

'Hold-the-Line' Legislative Session Seen for January

Solons Say School Building Fund Issue Likely To Stir Up Battle

By M. L. ST. JOHN

A "hold-the-line" session of the Georgia Legislature, with the probable exception of another battle over distribution of school building funds is seen for next January by many men nominated to the Senate and House.

Asked by The Constitution to state what they considered the most important issue facing the next session, the nominees showed a reluctance to participate in the survey and reluctance to discuss future legislation in the letters they did write.

Mostly, those participating in the survey don't look for any great amount of important legislation to come before the January session. They think the state is getting along fairly well, and they believe the solons will simply have to give their attention to how the money is being spent rather than passing further legislation.

70-DAY SESSION OPPOSED

They do not feel there will be sufficient business on hand to hold them in session for 70 continuous days. They generally oppose Governor Talmadge's suggestion that they stay in session 70 days and then adjourn for good, rather than split their session over two years as they have been doing since 1943.

There is a tendency toward economy in government—even to the extent of reducing the sales tax, or distributing the sales tax in a different manner. On the other hand, there are those who want to expand state services further—particularly toward improving highways.

Others are interested in making Georgia's highways safer through tightening traffic laws.

The school building formula row, which was still going strong when the Senate and House adjourned early this year, will have to be settled in January, several lawmakers said. Some favored the Senate formula, others favored the House plan. A move to bring the Legislature into special session this summer to approve a constitutional amendment formula failed. Meanwhile, the funds are being handled under the House plan.

The House plan distributes school building funds on an equalization or "hardship" basis of need to the local school systems. The Senate plan called for a strict formula of distributing the money among all the local systems on a per-teacher basis.

Some nominees foresee a lively session trying to solve a segregation problem if the United States Supreme Court rules against segregation in Georgia schools.

MARRIAGE MEASURE

Among the legislation suggested for January are proposals require a five-day waiting period for marriage licenses, revise the county unit system, ease the restrictions on old age benefits, pay a soldier's bonus, permit local governments to issue revenue certificates to build plants for new industries, and to provide a retirement system for state employees not under the merit system.

The "freshmen" nominees making their debut in the General Assembly next January are more cautious about their statements of aims and intentions than former first-year men.

TYPICAL COMMENT

Typical of the comments of many newcomers was this from Rep. Nominee Ernest J. Haar of Chatham County:

"Being a neophyte, I would not at this time be in position to state which is the most important legislation that will face the General Assembly at the next session, but the matter will receive my attention at an early date."

The House floor leader, Rep. Frank Twitty of Mitchell County, anticipates a quiet session in January, with the following comment: "I do not believe there will be any legislation of real significance to be argued at the next session. It is my personal belief that the school situation will be running on an even keel by next January, and

RED CROSS SHOW PLANNED—Preliminary arrangements for a mammoth Red Cross benefit show, featuring stars of the screen and stage, were made Thursday when Nate Stein, left, local public relations man, and Miss Kate Oliver, Red Cross official, met here. The show will be staged in October at the Municipal Auditorium. A blood donation will entitle the donor to admission.

I do not anticipate any extra session of the Legislature. Of course, there is always a question as to what will be brought up, but I do not anticipate much fireworks."

SCHOOL ISSUE

But Rep. Muggsy Smith of Fulton foresees the Legislature spending a good deal of time arguing over the school building formula. "I believe Speaker Hand and Lt. Gov. Griffin will continue to fight for their methods of spending the school building money, and while I lean toward the Senate formula, I still want to see schools built in many sections where they are needed," Smith said. "Only when we have adequate education in Georgia will the people do away with things like the county unit system, the great number of unproductive counties, and their attendant courthouse gangs."

FULTON HEALTH BOARD ACTS

Wandering Dog Problem Tossed in Lap of Cities

By DERICK DANIELS

The Fulton County Board of Health, harassed for months by residents of annexed areas with a dim view of dogs left free to roam, Thursday yanked the legal leashes from Atlanta's entire canine population.

Amid members' sighs of "thank goodness" and "amen" the board repealed the leash requirement of its rabies control law and left it squarely up to Atlanta and other Fulton cities to enact and enforce their own statutes.

The health board acted unanimously on advice from the county legal department which expressed doubt that the board had the constitutional right to "criminal enforcement of the law."

NEW WARDS COMPLAIN

Loud and oft-repeated cries for the county to crack down on wandering pups had come from the seventh, eighth and ninth wards which Atlanta annexed Jan. 1 under the Plan of Improvement. These areas came into the city after the Atlanta Health Department had been abolished and, therefore, were not subject to the now void leash regulation.

The board's move Thursday leaves Atlanta without any requirement that dogs be tethered, but opens the way for city council to pass a uniform regulation for the whole city.

In other actions, the board:

1. Recommended to Mayor

Hartsfield and city council that immediate attention be given drainage facilities on Chattahoochee Avenue around the Seaboard shops. There have been reports that inadequate drainage has polluted Proctor Creek.

2. Heard from Dr. J. C. Burch that the health department is getting excellent co-operation from the state in accepting tuberculosis cases at Battery Hospital. Burch, director of the health department's TB division, said Battery has accepted 12 of 37 cases filed and is considering 22 others.

Clerk of Court Would Post Bar Membership List

Fulton Superior Court Clerk J. W. Simmons offered Thursday to maintain in the Courthouse a bulletin board bearing names of all members of the Atlanta Bar Association.

In a letter to W. Neal Baird, president of the bar, Simmons called attention to a list that had been kept in the past and said he thinks the public is interested in knowing whether "the lawyer of the choice is subject to the rules and regulations of the association."

Weinfeld's Cause Is Not Hopeless

Arthur Weinfeld, 23-year-old Detroit youth, Thursday became the millionth draftee to take up arms in defense of the nation and the free peoples of the world since the United States gave the signal for intervention in the Korean War in 1950.

Typical of all American youngsters, Arthur takes up arms reluctantly and yet not unwillingly. His entry had been delayed while he completed his college courses in order that he might be prepared the better to serve his country. There is design in that also, because in this day of scientific warfare, brains count, too.

Pvt. Weinfeld has another distinction. This army into which he is being inducted, as glorious as its deeds, is able still to look at a man as an individual rather than as an automaton who pulls triggers and pushes buttons as an expendable commodity for the ambitions of his leaders.

He will help to fight a different kind of war, one on which our leaders have staked much to prevent World War III.

Some call the Korean conflict a crazy war, the Truman war, and our worst folly. However, we prefer the view of Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of The New York Times, who has a son in Korea:

"I came away with the feeling that here possibly was the first sane war in history, since here for the first time free nations voluntarily banded together and went to war to resist aggression. . . . If we were not involved in resisting Communist aggression in Korea, we would be called upon to do so in some other part of the world and perhaps with a greater expenditure of life and national resources."

Pvt. Weinfeld is not the last of American youths who must be drafted in the continuing struggle with communism, whether the Democrats or Republicans are in control. Every American has an obligation now. There is little hope for a future without the ever-present threat to freedom in Communist designs for world domination. World War III may be avoided, but it will be avoided only if we are strong enough to thwart and to push back the Kremlin's aggressive moves.

Pvt. Arthur Weinfeld has millions of helpers, not all of them this side of the Iron Curtain. With our resolve and with the help of all those who would be free, victory is inevitable and peace possible without world conflict and the destruction of most of mankind's institutions.

Delegates Indicate Support for Party

We are glad to see that Gov. Herman Talmadge has said publicly what he has been saying privately since the Democratic convention—that he will vote for the party nominee, Gov. Adlai Stevenson. Lieutenant Governor Griffin has also announced his support.

The fact both do so with some "reluctance" likely is for home consumption. The facts are that the platform and the candidates of the party are conservative and the South obtained about all it sought at Chicago.

There is more unity in the party now than in 1944 and more reason for the party in the South now to make up its mind to stay in and fight within the framework of the two-party system than ever before.

There should not be any "Democrats for Eisenhower" and the States' Rights Party is out of existence and needs not be revived. The Republicans in Georgia publicly have said they would prefer to lose the state by a straight-out party ticket than to carry it with the aid of a phony Democratic or States' Rights ticket.

"We are trying to build a Republican party in Georgia," said one of its leaders. "We do not want to harm the integrity of that effort by having the assistance of any trick Democratic help. We believe Georgians who want to vote for General Eisenhower have enough strength of character to do so. We cannot believe there are men and women who are so lacking in independence they will vote for a ticket they don't want merely because of the label. We earnestly ask there be an Eisenhower vs. Stevenson test."

We concur. Meanwhile, the Democrats of the South, with their victory in Chicago in their hands, should not be so blind and full of bile as to fail to see that what they accomplished came by fighting within the party.

All this talk of bolting, or walking out, weakens the South's position. Its best bet is to organize its strength, as it did, and fight to win the convention—as it did. The results are more unity than in 1948 and a stronger Southern position than the party has known in years. Let all Democrats, especially those who participated in the convention, announce their support of the nominee.

And let all those who don't want to be Democrats announce their support of General Eisenhower.

We need a healthy two-party system. Such a system depends on independents who will cross party lines when they feel it necessary.

But let's have done with the dangerous experimentation with splinter or bolt parties.

Milk Price Raise Won't Help Supply

Milk is back in the headlines with the story that the Georgia consumer faces a cent-a-quart price increase.

The supply is short. Pastures are gone, the corn is burned up.

So Charles Duncan, State Milk Control Board director, says, "We are just going to have to raise the price of milk to help the farmer."

It may well be that the farmer, faced with excessive production costs, deserves a raise.

What Mr. Duncan fails to explain is how raising the price of milk is going to help with the supply. The cow eking out an existence on Saharalike pastures and a dry supplement isn't going to give more milk just because her owner gets 3 cents more on the gallon.

Mr. Duncan is so alarmed he says, "We don't know what we are going to do when the schools open. We won't have enough milk for them."

If that situation should arise, if there is no milk for the school lunches, remember this: There is available plenty of Grade A milk powder, certified as pure and safe, which could be used in buttermilk and other products, leaving whole milk available for school use.

This powdered milk can be used in 47 states, that is, but not in Georgia. The State Department of Agriculture bans its use in Georgia except for sale at the grocer's in small packages. Remember that, if the supply of whole milk won't meet the demand when school opens in September.

Red Cross Gets Taste Of Communist Tactics

Requests for admission by Red China, North Korea and other Communist nations into the International Red Cross should have aroused the free world's suspicions in view of all their past performances. The Reds join nothing except to create discord and to destroy through infiltration.

They have now adopted the international conference in Toronto as another sounding board for Red propaganda. After refusing permission to the Red Cross to investigate their "germ warfare" charges, they are using its machinery to further their claims. Wednesday the world press carried reports of an almost day-long harangue against the United States, monotonous extensions of previous falsehoods.

The Reds stop at nothing to gain their ends. Humanitarian efforts of an organization like the Red Cross become mere instruments of their cynical purposes.

James T. Nicholson, executive vice-president of the American National Red Cross, warns that these tactics threaten to destroy the Red Cross.

We only hope Mr. Nicholson is not as naive as his remark sounds. The Communists had one purpose in joining the Red Cross—either to destroy it or to end its effectiveness.

As with the United Nations, the International Red Cross has a lot to learn. Its education is off to an auspicious start.

When will the free world stop playing into the hands of Red deceit through naivete and refusal to face facts?

GOP Brass Maps Campaign Plans

WASHINGTON—A change in administration of government after 20 years seems at present perhaps the most potent Republican campaign argument.

But that, of itself, poses quite a problem. It appears to require a clear, precise and straightforward answer by Republicans to the question people already are asking and which they will continue to ask as the campaign develops:

"A change to what?" It is obvious from any analysis of our people and their election habits of recent years that they won't change just for change's sake, especially in a time of prosperity. That prosperity now is shared by all elements of our society, and various measures of Democratic administrations to distribute our national income more equitably have had an influence.

Our people recognize that. Undoubtedly, a factor in misjudgment of the 1948 election was undue weight attached to the desire for a change after 16 years. However, although that may have counted at the outset, Republicans didn't convince enough voters during the ensuing campaign that they had a better program to change to than that of the Democrats.

Our voters demand proof. Republicans are unable to point to the most telling proof, which is performance, since they have been out of power. Consequently, they must offer a sound substitute for the ills they deplore and convince enough people that they intend to carry it out.

This is really the nub of the Republican problem that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower faces as he maps out his campaign these days in his Denver, Colo., retreat. It will take as skillful planning as any strategy he devised as a military commander.

As for the issue of change, the political history of the Stevenson family sheds a slightly different light on its efficacy. The Democratic candidate's grandfather, also Adlai Stevenson, was vice-president during one of the two separated terms of Grover Cleveland, the only Democratic president in the long stretch of 52 years from Abraham Lincoln in 1861 to Woodrow Wilson in 1912. If Democrats retain control of the government, that would be a tenure of 24 years. That is matched by the longest continued Republican rule, which was from 1861 to 1885, when Cleveland was elected the first time. After Cleveland's second term there was unbroken Republican control for 16 years, from 1897 to 1912.

In advancing the "time-for-a-change" issue, Republican National Chairman Arthur Summerfield is conscious of the new faces in the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket. So he describes the Democratic candidates as "hand-picked" by President Truman and as representing just a continuation of the Truman administration. That he reiterated in his first press conference here preliminary to opening national Eisenhower headquarters.

Gladstone Williams Party in Power Has Advantage

WASHINGTON—Now that the two major political parties have nominated their candidates for president and vice-president, it is possible to make some preliminary appraisal of election prospects for November. What is said now may not necessarily apply later. The campaign will have to progress before the issues and personalities of the candidates take definite form, but here is the situation as it is seen today by many seasoned and impartial observers.

In Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson both parties have put forth their strongest candidates. Both are men of the highest caliber.

On the face of things, this would seem to indicate a hard but cleanly fought contest, with a close finish at the polls. Certainly it would appear at this time that a landslide victory is not in sight on either side.

Both parties start the campaign with certain advantages on their side.

On the Republican side the chief points of advantage may be listed as follows: 1—The desire on the part of many people, including some Democrats as well as the overwhelming mass of Republicans, for a change after 20 years of Democratic governmental control. 2—The present greater popularity of General Eisenhower as reflected in the public sentiment polls. 3—Scandals unearthed under the Truman administration, which reflect on the party in power. 4—Dissatisfaction with the administration's foreign policy and opposition to its domestic spending program.

The advantages of the Democrats may be thus enumerated: 1—A preponderance of some 4,000,000 in the registered voters of the country, plus a tendency of a majority of the independent voters to cast their lot with the party in power, as shown by past elections. 2—Peak prosperity conditions now prevailing throughout the country, always an asset to the party in control. 3—A united party, no longer faced with threats of a Southern Dixiecrat revolt or other splinter party movement such as the Henry Wallace candidacy, which deprived the Democrats of an important block of electoral votes in the 1948 contest. 4—A strong party ticket which will make it easy for the party to rally around.

These are the main points of Democratic advantage. There is still another which may prove a powerful hidden factor in the campaign. It concerns the bitter contest that was waged over the Republican nomination between the Eisenhower and Taft forces. The wounds of that battle will be slow healing. It could cost the GOP several important pivotal states which otherwise they might be counted to carry—notably Ohio, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

But the sum total of the Democratic advantage seems to outweigh by a goodly margin that of the Republicans, even eliminating the Taft-Eisenhower imbroglio. The crux of it is found in points 1 and 2 of the party tally sheet given above.

Ideal Campaign of Stevenson Forces Gave Democrats Winner in November

Thomaston—Just read Mr. McGill's article on Kefauver's debacle at the Democratic convention in The Constitution. How true, how true.

There were two outstanding "boneheads" at the convention. Number one came when Tennessee voted to exclude Virginia from the convention and it sealed the fate of Kefauver, from the effects of which he may never recover. When you stab Virginia, you stab every Southern state.

The second "bonehead" comes closer home and leaves many voters in Georgia a little stunned. When Senator Russell experienced that sudden conversion like unto the Apostle Paul and announced his opposition to the Taft-Hartley Act he lost prestige which may cause him trouble in the future.

The highlight of the convention was the sensible and ideal campaign waged by the Stevenson forces. No promise, no friction, no sore spots. What an ideal candidate the Democrats have put in the race.

It now appears that General Ike will be numbered among the "also ran," and what a pity to see such a good man go down in defeat.

FRANK MATHEWS.

South Was Not Defeated, It Only Lost a Contest

Bethlehem—Our aristocratic ancestors would have been pleased with the royal good manners and superior wisdom of our Southern people as evidenced at the Democratic convention in Chicago. Senator Russell was condemned because of his being a Southerner, but we heard him say over and over that he was proud of his Southern heritage.

We were not defeated. We only lost a contest. And always we will have magnificent, illustrious sons and daughters who are capable of entering any contest, no matter how high the objective.

On this July 27, 1952, we can say with the poets of old: "I will lay me down to bleed awhile and rise to fight again."

MRS. GRACE EDWARDS.

Was Truman's Pay Raise In Accord With Constitution?

Greensboro, N. C.—The United States Constitution says: "The President shall at stated times receive a compensation which shall not be increased or diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected and he shall not within that period receive any other emolument from the United States or any of them."

Do you regard Harry Truman's raise in pay as constitutional? If not, what can be done about it? RAY WORMLEY.

Editor's Note: We believe in The Constitution of the United States. However, wasn't Mr. Truman's pay raised by Act of Congress prior to his present administration?

Humphrey Dumpty Had His Big Fall in Chicago

Union Point—I interpret the convention notes as follows:

Humphrey Dumpty sat on a wall; Humphrey Dumpty had a fall; A few of the "donkeys" and most of the "asses," Couldn't spare him the kicks of the delegate masses. "BOAZ."

Did Party Hang Albatross Around Stevenson's Neck

Atlanta—While nominating their strongest candidate and undoubtedly most intriguing personality, the Democratic Party hung an albatross around his neck and allowed President Truman to give him the kiss of death.

How on the one hand, can he strongly disassociate himself with the scandals of the Truman administration and particularly its philosophical dishonesty while Truman is whistle-stopping for the ticket? The South is hard put. The Republicans

Your Minister Can Be of Help

In recent years the minister has been taking his place increasingly alongside of those with professional training whose jobs are to help people when they are in trouble. The doctor, the social worker, the nurse and the minister belong to what has been called, "the helping professions." There are other professions that might be listed in this class such as the teacher and the lawyer, but these four especially give the major amount of their time and energy to helping people.

Everybody has a pretty clear idea of how the doctor, nurse, lawyer and social worker help people, but not everyone has such an understanding of the work of the minister. In more recent years the pastor has been receiving special instruction to equip him for the interesting and difficult task he faces.

In the current issue of Religion and Health, an article appears which needs to have wide reading by the general public in order to understand not only how the minister helps, but when he should be given the opportunity to help. The writers of this article, the Reverends Walter Lee Lanier and Russell L. Dicks, lists 16 times when to send for the minister. They are as follows:

1. When a loved one is seriously ill and facing death.
2. When a friend or relative continues to be despondent following the death of a loved one.
3. When you are facing a surgical operation.
4. When you are facing adjustment to a physical handicap.
5. When you are going through a long convalescence.
6. Following the birth of a baby.
7. When you desire to join the church.
8. When you have begun to worry about excessive drinking.
9. When a loved one is drinking excessively.
10. When you are having difficulty in your marriage.
11. When you are choosing a life work and feel uncertain about your choice.
12. When you are choosing a life mate and have doubts about your choice.
13. When as a parent you are concerned about either of the above decisions for your son or daughter.
14. When you are discouraged and life has lost its meaning.
15. When a loved one has become despondent for no obvious reason.
16. When the behavior of a loved one shows marked and rapid change, whether it is toward excessive misbehavior or excessive interest in religion; both are indications of serious personality disturbance.

In selecting a pastor, there are at least four principles to follow: 1. It is better to go to your own pastor first. He will be more interested in you than any other minister. 2. If you do not have a pastor, usually it is better to select one of your own denominational preference. 3. It is usually better to go to a pastor in your own community. 4. If you need further help, you will be referred to the one who can help you the most. But don't go running off to some pastor just because he lives at a distance or happens to have a prominent name.

Tomorrow—How The Pastor Helps.

A Platform All Can Support

Since the mercury has slipped into the chill 90s, let's talk about blood—the Red Cross blood program, that is. Overall, the picture is not good. George Keller, who directs the program for the Atlanta region, reports that collection is near the 1951 level only by dint of a good record in Fulton County. Despite the heat, folks have been going to the Blood Center at 848 Peachtree in sufficient numbers to offset the lag in the region. There the response has been slow.

But not so the demand for blood. The call becomes greater every day—blood for the men in Korea (the heat's still on over there), blood for civilian use at home.

The demand for blood is up, the supply hardly holds its own.

Sure, the season has been torrid, vacations have interfered, those and a dozen other hindrances have kept you away from the Blood Center or the Bloodmobile. But those are explanations, not excuses. They are never hard to find.

The dissatisfied sales manager knew about that human failing when he posted the following alibi chart for the convenience of his salesmen: January—People spent all their bucks for the holidays. February—All my best customers gone South. March—Everybody's worrying about income tax. April—People spent too much on Easter clothes. May—Too much rain; farmers worry. . . . June—Not enough rain; farmers worry. July—Everybody away on vacations. August—Everybody still away. September—Everybody broke, broke. . . . October—Customers waiting to see how fall clearance comes out. November—Everybody too upset over elections. December—Customers spending all their money on Christmas.

August will be a critical month for the Red Cross blood program. The lull between political convention and campaign is a good time to rally to the cause. Blood which was boiling last week should have cooled sufficiently by now to keep well in the Red Cross bank.

One platform which all of us can support is that of the American Red Cross with an emphasis right now on the blood plank. A loyalty pledge everyone can sign is a promise to support the delegates of both parties who are making the campaign for freedom on Old Baldy and other bloody heights somewhere north of Seoul.

Climb on the band wagon. Get your name on the donor honor roll. There's a long hard pull ahead.

ROOM FOR ARGUMENT: Mama was trying to explain to the kids the other day that the earth is round like a ball. "No, Mama," corrected one of the young-uns, "it's square. Don't you hear the man on the radio every day sayin' the news is gathered from the four corners of the world?"

Glad we ain't raisin' a bunch of "yes men" ennyhow—"Dempsey Doodles" in The Tri-County Courier.

Independent Vote Power Eyed by Ike

By W. H. LAWRENCE
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
DENVER, July 31—General Eisenhower was warned today that he needs the support of 10,000,000 independent, dissident Democrats and nonregular Republicans to win in November and was urged to use in his campaign amateur organizations that appeal to these groups where the regular Republican setup does not.

The Republican nominee was given a blueprint of a plan whereby the Citizens-for-Eisenhower organization which fought his pre-convention campaign not only will continue through the November election but will be placed on an equal level with the regular Republican National Committee.

This proposal was placed before the general by Walter Williams of Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Oswald B. Lord of New York, co-leaders of the citizens' group.

IKE LIKES IT

Williams told reporters later that the nominee "likes it" and would place it before a strategy meeting of top party leaders here tomorrow.

The strategy advocated by Williams and Mrs. Lord was given support by H. J. (Jack) Porter, new Texas national committeeman, who indicated the Republican Party of his state might formally nominate Gov. Allan Shivers, an anti-administration Democrat, for re-election to help carry Texas for Eisenhower.

Asserting confidence that Eisenhower can carry Texas in November, Porter said the 24 electoral votes were important to success of the ticket nationally and that he would urge Republicans to "lay off" pushing local candidacies in the big cities where cross-filing of Democratic candidates as Republicans might help increase the majority for Eisenhower.

CAMPAIGN FAREWELL

Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Ford Foundation and a leader in the Eisenhower pre-convention campaign, came in today to say farewell to active politicking this year and to give his backing to the effort to seek the votes of independent voters for Eisenhower.

Pointing out that there are 3,000,000 more registered Democrats than Republicans, Hoffman said support of the independents was essential to victory. He was certain, he said, that Eisenhower packed enormous appeal among this group and he could see the possibilities of "a landslide victory" if a "tough, fighting campaign" was conducted.

Hoffman's news conference was unusual for a party headquarters in that he kept reiterating that Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic nominee, was "a fine man" and that he too had appeal to independent voters who had hoped before the conventions that their November choice would be between Eisenhower and Stevenson.

Rep. Taber Charges Arms Waste, Delay

AUBURN, N. Y., July 31—(INS). Rep. John Taber charged tonight that Congress gave the Army enough to build 16,000 tanks since 1950 but up to two or three weeks ago only 10 had been produced.

The New York Republican economy "watchdog" in the House also blasted the Air Force, Navy and Atomic Energy Commission with other federal agencies for what he called wastefulness and bad management.

The Auburn congressman said the Navy was granted funds in 1948 to build a number of small submarines, small destroyers and landing craft and that the contracts had still not been let out by last month.

Speaking before Auburn Kiwanians, Taber said:

"The military departments lack effective and competent civilians at the head of each. They do not do the work as they should."

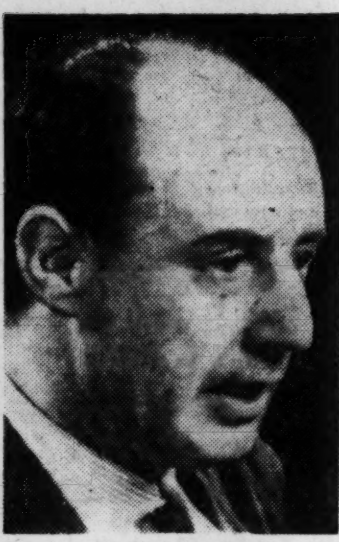

He asserted the Army got funds for 9,000 tanks in 1950 and funds for an additional 7,000 in 1951. He went on:

"But up to April 1 of this year not a single one of these tanks had been produced. And up to two or three weeks ago only 10 had been made."

The congressman attributed this to the "inability of Army experts to decide on the design for the tank turret for some time after the decision had been made on the chassis."

Nixon Holds Subversion Major Issue

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 31—U.S. Sen. Richard Nixon, GOP vice-presidential nominee, predicted a Republican victory in November through a campaign against the "captive" candidates of the Truman administration and labor bosses.

He promised newsmen in a press conference before a major political speech at the Ohio Republican convention tonight that Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, could not win because he was shackled to past Democratic mistakes.

Nixon, 39-year-old running mate of Dwight D. Eisenhower, promised that subversion and infiltration of the federal government would be made a key issue by the GOP.

He said he would exploit the Alger Hiss case to the fullest extent. Nixon played a prominent role in sending Hiss to prison from his State department post for perjury himself regarding alleged Communist connections.

The vice-presidential candidate said he plans "at least one major speech" in which he will attack the Truman administration on communism and subversion.

"In that speech, I will include the Alger Hiss case," he said.

Stevenson Working on Farm Policy

By JAMES RESTON
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
SPRINGFIELD, July 31—Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois started working today on his farm policy in the hope of carrying some of the prairie states into the Democratic column in the November election.

With the rural areas of this part of the country enjoying unrivaled prosperity, and all forecasts indicating bumper crops just before the big vote in November, the new Democratic presidential nominee was reported to be planning a major campaign to crack the traditionally Republican Midwestern states.

KEY IN 1948

This was the key to the Democratic victory in 1948 when, despite the loss of New York and Pennsylvania, President Truman dramatized the Republican failure to provide funds for grain storage facilities and carried Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota, Missouri, and even Iowa.

The margin of victory in the big Midwestern electoral vote states of Ohio and Illinois, however, was less than five per cent. Accordingly, Stevenson's associates figure that it will be necessary to wage a vigorous campaign in the rural areas if the success of 1948 in this region is to be repeated.

Senator Kerr of Oklahoma, who has been emphasizing the importance of the Democratic agricultural record all year, went over farm policy with the presidential nominee today.

PEP MEETING

"We had a pep meeting for the Democratic cause and a memorial service for the Republican cause," Kerr said when he came out of the governor's mansion.

"You mean the campaign's all over?" a reporter said.

"No," replied the senator, "but once the people have a chance to look at the Democratic record and program, it'll be all over with in November."

AFL Endorsement Of Adlai Seen

CHICAGO, July 31—An American Federation of Labor official said today the AFL may endorse the presidential candidacy of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

Reuben G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, said "I have information that the AFL intends to consider a presidential endorsement at its meeting in New York, starting Sept. 15."

He added, "I personally expect that the AFL will endorse Stevenson."

A TRAGEDY AVERTED—AUSTIN, Texas, July 31—A large section of plaster ceiling collapsed in Queen Theater today injuring 13 of a youthful audience watching a Tarzan thriller. Three were hurt seriously. Police said a real tragedy was averted only because the theater was not full. Panic-stricken youngsters, most of them 6 to 15, rushed from the theater. Three children had to be dug out. Two were unconscious but quickly revived.

Police Escort Strikers From IHC Twine Mill

CHICAGO, July 31—A task force of more than 125 police today arrested defiant sitdown strikers in the twine mill of International Harvester Co. and removed them from the plant in patrol wagons.

Officers escorted the sitdowners out through a jeering, taunting picket line of other workers, but there was no violence.

Some 250 workers began a sit-down strike yesterday to protest plans of the company to move the twine plant to New Orleans, La. The mill has a total working force of 865.

Capt. George Barnes of the police labor detail led a force of officers and policemen into the five-story building to eject the strikers.

He gave them two minutes to leave, and when they refused he ordered his force to take them out.

Officers moved in two to a striker to take them away and about 40 were taken out in the first group.

Before police arrived another group of twine workers who had not participated in the sitdown formed a picket line in front of the doorways and marched in lock-step.

The workers are members of Local 141 of the Farm Equipment-United Electrical Workers Union. Many are Negroes.

Barnes last night entered the plant and announced to the sit-

Mossadegh Gets Power Of Dictator

By ALBION ROSS

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

TEHRAN, Iran, July 31—Parliament today pushed through two readings of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's single article bill giving him power to legislate by decree for six months, or what amounts to dictatorial powers. This amounted to all but final approval of the bill.

The bill limits his decree-making powers to the subjects included in the government's nine-point program, as presented to Parliament when the new cabinet took office. The nine-point program, however, is merely a listing of the various fields within which any government might expect to seek legislation. It referred to the fields of finance, monetary matters, banking, exploitation of oil resources, judicial and administrative reform, social reform, municipal reorganization, press laws, education and health.

ALMOST NO LIMIT

Since such things as the size of the armed forces come under the heading of financial measures and balancing the budget is limited to matters included in the nine-point program, the bill, for all practical purposes, amounts to no limitation at all, except that the Premier is not empowered to change the constitution. He is empowered in effect only to exercise nearly all of the powers reserved to Parliament under the constitution for a period of six months.

Under the full powers act he may present to Parliament at any time during the six-month period any of his decree legislation with a request that it be made into permanent legislation. At the expiration of the six-month period Parliament can review his decrees and decide what to do about them.

STANDING VOTE

The vote today was a standing vote, with no count. One or two deputies remained seated but no issue was made of the matter.

Parliamentary government in fact is in rather low repute in Iran. The country has had no budget for 10 years and has had to run on hand-to-mouth monthly estimates presented at the last minute to legalize its payments.

Default of Fine May Keep Colonel's Wife in Germany

WIESBADEN, Germany, July 31—(AP)—Counsel for Mrs. Katherine G. Reed said today she might not be able to pay a $3,982 fine, imposed on black-marketing charges, in time to accompany her officer husband when he returns to the United States Sunday for reassignment.

Judge DeWitt White of Morgantown, W. Va., who imposed the fine for five counts of illegal dealings, had warned that she would not be legally able to leave Germany until the fine was paid. Mrs. Reed's counsel, Earl Smith of Wiesbaden, said "It is not easy to raise that kind of money on this side of the water in a hurry." But he added that he hoped an arrangement could be made with the court so that Mrs. Reed could leave with her husband, Air Force Col. Allen W. Reed, formerly of Fairfield, Ia.

Finns Ready Last Payment To Russians

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
HELSINKI, Finland, July 31—Finland has entered the home stretch in her payment of war reparations to the Soviet Union.

With only seven weeks to go before the final installment is due Sept. 19, the Finns have announced that they will have the 14 ships making up this last payment ready for delivery by that date.

The 1944 Russo-Finnish armistice, later confirmed by the 1946 Paris Peace Treaty, called for delivery of $300,000,000 worth of merchandise to the Soviet Union "invoiced at 1938 prices."

EXPENSIVE CLAUSE

This clause has proved expensive. Despite Moscow's subsequent gesture writing off 25 per cent of the reparations debt and 80 per cent of the fines contractually levied for late deliveries, the Finns will have paid nearly $400,000,000 to the Soviet Union.

Completion of the reparations task means the Finns will henceforth be able to devote to domestic requirements the $50,000,000 annually that the reparations have been exacting. The bulk of this saving will go to social welfare purposes, it is stated. Also, the staffs and offices of the War Reparations Board will be available for other purposes, as will be the premises of the many Russians maintained here to check on production.

VAST INDUSTRY

When Finland "burns the mortgage" in September, she will, however, be left with a vast mechanical industry especially built up to meet the war reparations demand.

Fears that Finnish shipyards and tool shops will be idle now and unemployment arise have been at least temporarily alleviated by fresh Soviet orders on a barter basis. These should keep the Finnish mechanical industries normally busy up to 1955.

The merchandise delivered to the Soviet Union as reparations fall into five main categories: Machinery, cellulose and paper, timber and woodworking products, cables and wiring materials and vessels.

Ships are making up this final installment.

Wheeling Steel Rejects Terms, Strike Continues

PITTSBURGH, July 31—One major independent steel company fell in line today with "Big Six" terms settling the steel strike, but another balked and broke off talks with the CIO United Steelworkers.

6 Swedish Spies Meted Jail Terms

STOCKHOLM, July 31—(INS). Six Swedish Communists were sentenced today to prison terms ranging from eight months to life for selling Sweden's northern defense secrets to Russia.

The prosecution said the espionage plot, dating back to 1941, was the "most serious crime" in the history of traditionally neutral Sweden.

Communists demonstrated outside the courtroom as sentence was passed.

In all seven persons were brought to trial June 15, the day Russian fighters shot down a Swedish flying boat over the Baltic. One was acquitted.

Johan Fritiof Enbom, 32-year-old Communist leader and journalist, and Hugo Gjersvold, a former non-commissioned army officer, were sentenced to life at hard labor.

Enbom's brother, Martin, was sentenced to 7 years; Fingal Larsson, 5 years; Arthur Karlsson, 20 months; Lillian Ceder, a woman journalist, 8 months.

After the trial began, Johan Enbom, the espionage ringleader, confessed he had spied on Swedish defenses for Russia since 1941. He admitted a plot to take over Sweden by fifth column tactics if war had broken out between Russia and the Western Allies in 1949.

Enbom claimed he had received only $2,000 from Russia for 10 years of work as a spy.

Knowles Will Sing At Atlanta University

Two Atlanta singers who recently appeared in concert at Emory University, will be featured in a concert at the Atlanta University Summer School at 8 p. m. Friday. They are Adriana Knowles, mezzo-soprano, and Paul Knowles, tenor. Their presentation will feature costume scenes from opera and musical comedy.

Crucible Steel, with 16,000 employees in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, reached an "interim" agreement with the union and issued an immediate back-to-work order to its workers.

But Wheeling Steel refused to meet the union's terms and its 15,000 employees remained on strike for the 59th day.

CRUCIBLE AGREES

Crucible officials met with USW director Joseph McNichols in a day-long conference and agreed to terms set by the "Big Six" companies and the union in last week's White House settlement plus continuation of a full union shop.

Crucible had refused to recognize the "Big Six" settlement because it included provisions for a modified union shop.

Although today's settlement is subject to further negotiations before a full-fledged contract is written, the company has ordered workers to report at its plants at Syracuse, N. Y., Harrison, N. J., and Midland and Pittsburgh, Pa.

TALKS COLLAPSE

Wheeling Steel, with plants in Wheeling, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio, reported its negotiations with the union had collapsed.

Officials of the West Virginia firm, an independent producer employing 15,000 men, charged the union "walked out" although it was offered the same settlement reached by the industry's "Big Six" and CIO steelworkers.

Union director Paul Rusen accused Wheeling of attempting to "take away from its employees conditions which they have enjoyed in the past."

Meantime, U. S. Steel vice-president John A. Stephens met with USW vice-president James Timmes in Pittsburgh to draft a formal contract.

CONTRACT TALKS

Similar contract talks were expected between the union and other members of the "Big Six"—Jones and Laughlin, Republic, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Inland Steel. All have reopened under a "memorandum" agreement.

The Wheeling talks, which affect workers in plants at Wheeling and Steubenville, have been under way since Sunday.

HONOR MEDALIST COMFORTS BEREAVED MOTHER

Air Hero Saves Woman on Ledge

WASHINGTON, July 31—A Building as a crowd watched tense-think of her other two children. grief-stricken young mother who said she didn't want to "live any more" was rescued from a six-story building ledge today by a Congressional Medal of Honor winner who risked his own life.

Mrs. Lucille Whomble, 21, the mother of two small children, was led to safety by Maynard H. "Snuffy" Smith, 41.

Smith, a former Flying Fort belly-gunner, inched his way along the ledge of the downtown YMCA.

Chennault Gets Disputed Planes

HONG KONG, July 31—Hong Kong authorities today turned over to retired Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault 40 commercial planes valued unofficially at $3,000,000.

Chennault's Civilian Air Transport, Inc., and the Chinese Communist government had contested ownership of the planes in the courts for two years.

The transport line bought them in 1940 from the Chinese Nationalists. The Communists insisted the Nationalists had no right to sell them. The Privy Council in London ruled this week in favor of Chennault.

Mayer's 65 Takes Lead In Tam Golf

CHICAGO, July 31.—Blond Dick Mayer, the Connecticut Yankee who trails 17th on the pros' money-winning list, fired a seven-under par, 32-33-65 Thursday for a one-stroke lead over Jim Turnesa, National PGA champion, to set the par-36 pace in the first round of the $30,000 All-American golf meet at Tam O'Shanter.

The swarthy little Turnesa plodded in with a 32-34 over Tam's trampled 35-36-72 par layout.

In all, 44 players broke par as the barrier was sprung on a stampede for the $3,420 first award to be given at the end of 72 holes of medal play Sunday.

Running simultaneously were the All-American Men's Amateur and Women's Open.

Frank Stranahan took charge of the Amateur with a 70. Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Texas, paced the women with a three-under par 73 followed by Louise Suggs, Carrollton, Ga., and Betty Bugh, Hammond, Ind., with 75's.

MINORS RAGS, MAJORS RICHES

Time Boosts Georgia-Florida Grads

By BILL MCGROTHA
If the Georgia-Florida League was called on to name its single all-time best production, pitcher Ace Townsend Adams would probably take the cake in a walk. The venerable iron man is the only candidate to make the all-time league team, based on performance within the Georgia-Florida, and the all-time league team, based on performance in the majors, in the selections of The Constitution.

On the all-time pitching staff with Adams in a quartet of 20-game winners in the majors who were less than spectacular in their Georgia-Florida days. Three of these—Gene Bearden, Tex. Hughson, Bill Voiselle—pitched for Moultrie, and the fourth, Johnny Beazley, was with Tallahassee.

Beazley, 21-6 for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1942, with two victories over the New York Yankees in the World Series, could do no better than one victory and eight losses at Tallahassee in 1937. Hughson, in the league with Adams and Beazley the same season, was a mere 8-6 for Moultrie, yet five years later he notched 22-6 with the Boston Red Sox.

Voiselle came along a year later than the above trio, had a dismal 4-15 year with Moultrie. In 1944, this same boy from Ninety-Six, S. C., was 21-16 with the New York Giants. Bearden managed a sorry 5-11 at Moultrie in 1936. In 1945, all he did was pitch the Cleveland Indians to a pennant, finishing 20-7 and gaining the memorable playoff victory over the Red Sox for the crown.

Eddie Robinson of present-day Chicago White Sox fame is the first baseman. With Valdosta in 1940, Robinson showed future promise when he hit .324 and drove in over a 100 runs in 1940. Little Davey Williams, hustling keystone of the New York Giants now one of the outstanding young infielders in the majors, is the second baseman. At Waycross in 1947, Davey scored 147 runs, a league mark that still stands.

Albany's Red Schoendienst gets the nod at shortstop. No great shucks as a .269 hitter with Albany, Schoendienst then, as now, was a sharp fielder and though he has played second, third and the outfield in the majors, he still is the choice as the best shortstop alumni of the Georgia-Florida.

Pete Castiglione, who has played a lot of shortstop himself, but whose primary post nowadays is at third base for the Pittsburgh Pirates, gets the all-time hot corner nomination. Averaging .260 as a hitter the

Hayes' Team Scores 62 in Pro-Am

By BERT PRATHER
Georgia's first annual State Open golf tournament will get under way Friday morning at Meadowbrook Country Club with a field of approximately 100 pros and amateurs shooting for the cash and silver prizes.

Most of the pros and amateurs warmed up for the three-day, 54-hole medal test by competing in the pro-amateur Thursday afternoon.

Bobby Hayes, newly appointed assistant to Bill Hall at North Fulton and generally considered the man to beat, turned in a five-under-par 66 to lead his team to victory in the pro-am. His team, also including amateurs Johnny Hayes, Gordon Clay and Bill Clay, turned in a best ball of 62. That netted Hayes top prize of $100 and earned merchandise prizes for his amateur partners. Gordon Clay had a three-under 68 for one of the lowest rounds reported by an amateur.

Charlie Harper of Fort Benning, another well-backed favorite for the title, led his team of Johnny Henion, Sam Lippitt and Orville Folkerts to a best ball of 63 to finish in a four-way tie for second. Harper had an individual 67.

Bo Dempsey, assistant to host pro Bobby Stowe, teamed with J. R. Spence, Vance Lynch, and

U. S., Russian Cagers Ready for Showdown

Lovellette and Pippin Lead Americans Over Argentina

By CHARLES A. SMITH

HELSINKI, July 31.—(INS)—America grabbed two more precious points Thursday in its battle to catch the Russian Olympic leaders. As the tension mounted, stateside swimmers qualified with record-breaking times and the U. S. basketball team forced a Saturday showdown with the Soviets.

The score at day's end was Russia 52 1/2, against 46 1/2 for the U. S.—a spread of 5 1/2 points with basketball, boxing, and some swimming and diving still to be settled, in addition to lesser sports.

The Soviets didn't score in any of Thursday's finals.

Barbara Stark of Berkeley, Calif., swimming only a few days after a serious dressing-room accident required three stitches over her right eye, was fifth in a blanket final that brought victory to Joan Harrison of South Africa in the women's 100-meter backstroke final.

Meanwhile, the U. S. basketball team, led by Clyde Lovellette's 27 points and the all-around floor-manship of Dan Pippin, beat Argentina, 85-75.

The American squad will go in the final game Saturday against the Soviets, who won their semifinal from Uruguay, 61-57. The U. S. beat Russia, 86-58, earlier this week in the round-robin cage play.

Hawaiian-born Ford Konno and Jimmy McLane of Akron, Ohio, carried America's hopes into the finals of the 1,500-meter freestyle at a pace so fantastic that France's Jean Boiteaux, winner of the 400-meter event Wednesday, broke the old 1,500-meter mark in his trial heat Thursday and still couldn't qualify.

Yoshinobu Oyakawa of Ohio State set a new Olympic record of 1:05.7 in his semifinal heat in the men's 100-meter backstroke and Gerry Holan of Ohio State won his opening heat in the 200-meter breaststroke in the Olympic record time of 2:36.8.

Maj. Sammy Lee of Fresno, Calif., and John McCormack of Pasadena, Calif., were running one-third halfway through the men's high-diving event.

Five U. S. boxers remained in contention. The U. S. scored early victories with Nate Brooks, Cleveland flyweight, and Charles Adkins of Gary, Ind.

The U. S. water polo team fought its way into the final round of four. Led by Bob Hughes of El Segundo, Calif., they topped Spain, 6-4.

Through it all, the tension

Cleaners 'Chop Cotton' For Semi-Finals Victory

By MARION GAINES

After giving up five runs in the first frame, the Little Crackers' Cotton Flanigan made only one other mistake—he committed a balk in the seventh to send Russell Powell home from third with a 6-5 victory for the Bankhead Cleaners in the semifinals of the City Junior Amateur playoffs Thursday at Center Hill.

Bankhead will battle the Buck-borne's line drive and doubled head Braves at 8:15 p. m. Friday Murphy off first base.

Only players to rap more than the Braves already hold an 8-5 one hit were McHaney and Baker opening-round decision over the Cleaners.

Singles by James Baker, Terry Murphy, Bob McCoy, Calvin Phillips and Tommy McHaney in the initial heat brought five-run grief to Flanigan. Avondale high ace. But he settled down after that and permitted only five more safeties.

Meanwhile, J. F. Cloud's Cleaners were fighting towards the finals behind the eight-hit twirling of the dependable McHaney, ice-cool right-hander. Six errors behind him didn't help, but McHaney experienced real trouble only in the fifth, when Jake Rakestraw's boys cashed three hits, a walk and a bobbie for a trio of markers.

The Crax' Arvie Pilgrim, all-around star from Rome, was little short of sensational with his out-fielding, especially in the fourth when he gathered in Larry Os-

North's Langford 'Ready' For All-Star Game Test

Class B-C Gridders Check in for Drills, AA-A Aggregations Make Debut Today

By BILL MCGROTHA

If the attitude of Thomson's Douglas Langford is any indicator, this inaugural class B-C All-Stars football clash next Thursday night should be a great affair.

When Forest Park's Al Jeffrey saw the hefty 6-2, 200-pound Langford walk into the Grant Field dressing room Thursday afternoon as the teams drew uniforms, the North coach quizzed:

"Where you play, boy?"

Came the tailor-made reply:

"Anywhere, coach. Just a n y o l d where!"

All true. Langford, listed as a tackle, was a giant of all trades for Flash Gordon's unbeaten Thomson Bulldogs last fall.

The South team may not have a boy that can play any old where, but they have one who can play the backfield any old way. That would be Frank Wimberly, the amble-dextrous Swainsboro kid who passes left and right-handed, kicks left and right-footed—he uses both to run.

The class B-C North, South squads checked in for the Georgia Athletic Coaches Association's gala week Thursday afternoon, along with the girls' basketball teams. Class AA-A gridders were due Friday afternoon, along with boys' basketballers.

Both Class B-C aggregations worked out at Tech's Rose Bowl Field after drawing uniforms. Limbering-up drills and working together on signals was the order of the day.

North B-C folks are being coached by Carlton Lewis of West Point and Jeffrey. Both coached unbeaten teams last season. Forest Park won the state Class C championship, Cordele beat West Point for the B title in the playoff finale. Warrenton's Charley Brake and Bob Murphy of Cuthbert are at the South helm.

Here's the all-star games schedule for the North-South units: girls' basketball, Tuesday; boys' basketball, Wednesday; B-C football Thursday; AA-A football, Friday.

straight, Willis Hudlin's outfit still has won only five of 16 games from Atlanta.

After Atkins unloaded his second homer, in the seventh, the Crackers mustered two with another futile rally in the eighth.

Rucker led that round with a double and counted on Parks' two-base smack. Basso played Parks with a single, but Johnson got Vern Petty on a doubleplay roller to third. Ray Cabanaw, who had made a great catch of Wooten's pop near the Cracker dugout in the third, engineered the timely doubleplay.

It was Johnson's tenth triumph of the year, compared to six defeats.

Thursday's was the final appearance of the year here for the Travelers, who had a 3-8 record at Poncey. Although they took three

Faulk Beaten in Western Amateur

Condensed from Constitution Wire Reports

Willow Berri Long, 15-year-old West Virginian who apparently doesn't know she isn't supposed to beat the better players in women's golf, Thursday reached the semifinals of the Woman's Western Amateur tournament, trimming Gloria Fecht, Palm Springs, Calif., 1-up in 19 holes.

Miss Long, who ousted defending champion Marjorie Lindsay, 3 and 2, in the first round, Friday will meet tourney medalist Polly Riley, who bested Mrs. Jack Damerel, 2 and 1.

Mary Ann Downey, Baltimore, tripped Mary Lena Faulk, Thomasville, Ga., 3 and 2, and Pat Lesser bounced Edean Anderson, Helena, Mont., 1-up, in other semifinal matches.

Second baseman Eddie Mikals will be lost to the Chicago Cubs for a week or ten days because of a severely sprained right knee, the result of falling Wednesday while fielding a single by the Giants' Hank Thompson.

U. S. sprint ace Lindy Remigio of Manhattan equalled the world 100-meter dash record of 10.2 seconds during a post-Olympic track meet which ended in Oslo Thursday.

Richard (Moose) Monroe, former Jayhawk line star, has been added to the Kansas University coaching staff. He will serve as center coach.

Dudley Hanover, from the Hayes Fair Acres Stables, scored a major upset by rushing to the fore in the final sixteenth of a mile to win the $50,000 Nassau two-mile pace at Roosevelt Raceway, beating front-running Mighty Good Time.

Top-seeded Straight Clark was victim of a stunning upset in the quarterfinals of the Meadow Club Invitation tennis meet at Southampton, N. Y., bowing, 6-4, 6-4, to 19-year-old Bob Perry of Los Angeles. The winner is a protégé of Jack Kramer.

Joey DeJohn, Syracuse middleweight, knocked out Henry (Kid) Lee, Springfield, Mass., in 15 seconds of the third round at Syracuse.

Don Bardage has been named to coach the Stetson line by John H. Partee, head coach. Bardage, ex-Texas Christian football and baseball player, coached baseball at Landon in Jacksonville, Fla., last year.

Sixth-seeded Bill Cranston, Santa Monica, Calif., was upset by twelfth-seeded Ed Rubinoff, Miami Beach, in the National Junior tennis tournament at Kalamazoo, Mich. Scores were 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

and are unable to obtain credit from local sources to carry on their operations. The loans may not be used for refinancing existing obligations.

Farmers may make immediate applications for loans at offices of the FIA. They are repayable in a year and bear a 3 per cent interest rate.

Brannan designated Assistant Secretary Knox T. Hutchinson to preside at the Nashville meeting. He added that representatives from the Farmers Home Administration, Farm Credit Administration, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Soil Conservation Service and the Extension Service will be represented.

SCATTERED SHOWERS

There were scattered thunder showers throughout the state Thursday but the weatherman said they were light and provided little more than token relief to parched farmlands.

The Atlanta Weather Bureau said rainfall in the Atlanta area measured .2 inch. Light afternoon showers were reported at Columbus, but Augusta, Savannah and Valdosta recorded no rain.

Farm experts said at least 72 hours of "slow, steady, ground-soaking rain" is needed to save those crops not already beyond recovery.

Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Tom Linder estimated the state's crop loss at $200,000,000. He said the corn yield will be reduced at least 75 per cent.

LIQUIDATING HERDS

Scorched pastures, coupled with damaged feed crops, Linder said, have already caused some farmers to begin liquidation of their herds. He said the outlook is dark for the state's livestock industry, which brought farmers $153,000,000 last year.

The commissioner said he fears the disastrous drouth will bring an acceleration of the exodus of farmers to the cities. "A trend which already is a serious threat to the nation's economy."

Linder called the current drouth the "worst in my memory—worse than the one we had in 1925."

As one Georgia farmer described the situation: "I've been around here for some 60 years and I've seen some real hot spells, but it looks like God is really mad this time."

A Department of Commerce weather and crop survey and reports of county agents indicated heavy damage to the peanut crop. The heat also has played havoc with truck crops.

COTTON HURT

A spokesman for the State Department of Agriculture said the extent of damage to the cotton crop has not been determined but he predicted that the yield will be at least 25 per cent under that of last year.

In Fulton County, Assistant County Farm Agent C. B. Gladin said most of the corn crop has long been parched. But he said three to six inches of rain within the next several days might save young corn and save a portion of the cotton and hay crops.

Meanwhile, the Department of Agriculture said reports indicate that regions other than the South are beginning to suffer from the prolonged absence of rainfall.

EASTERN STATES

A weekly summary of conditions issued Thursday said conditions were becoming serious in Eastern states.

"Crops are deteriorating, wells and ponds are drying up, and serious fire hazards exist," the report said.

Crops principally affected from the Ohio Valley southward are fruits, vegetables and tobacco, but general field crops also are suffering.

The New England region is being watched closely by Department of Agriculture officials. Maine and parts of Massachusetts already are reported seriously affected by drouth. Continuation of existing conditions might result in all New England being designated as a disaster loan area.

Pay for Slaughter Of Sick Hogs Eyed

WASHINGTON, July 31—A program for paying farmers whose hogs must be slaughtered in a campaign to wipe out vesicular exanthema is under consideration.

Disclosing this today, an Agriculture department spokesman said such a program—if undertaken—would be carried on in cooperation with the states in which the disease has been found.

It was emphasized that the matter still is in the preliminary discussion stage and that no decision may be reached for some time.

the determined fight in the closing hours of the 82nd Congress to get an appropriation of $2,898,000,000 for new plants and equipment. The Senate and House deadlocked for two days over this item, economy champions in the House holding that the commission could not spend this amount of money during the current year.

NEW "SITE 3"

In the compromise which permitted adjournment, however, the full sum was allowed and the commission intends to go forward with a new installation, known only as Site 3, probably to be located somewhere in the Ohio River Valley, in the belief that the new sources of raw material will be able to support its operation when completed. Its nature has not been disclosed.

The commission was again proud of the safety record in its installations. It described in detail the third radiation accident to take place in its history (the first two happened during the weapons tests at Eniwetok in 1948, and five men were burned in them).

"On June 2, 1952," the report said, "a sudden increase of radioactivity caused a chain reaction experiment at Argonne National Laboratory (near Chicago) to become super-critical for an instant, producing a burst of radiation which resulted in over-exposure to neutron and gamma radiation of four persons—two physicists and two technicians—working as a team upon an experiment."

MEANWHILE, the Department of Agriculture said reports indicate that regions other than the South are beginning to suffer from the prolonged absence of rainfall.

Price Hike of 5.5 Per Cent Approved for Aluminum forced by John R. Steelman, acting director of the Office of Defense Mobilization. The price rise for steel was one of the major considerations in bringing an end to the prolonged steel strike.

Arnall is known to feel strongly about the price increase which his office will authorize for aluminum also. His experts are reported to have maintained that an increase of 1 cent a pound for aluminum ingot and 5 per cent for fabricated aluminum was sufficient. Aluminum ingots currently have a ceiling price of 18 cents a pound. Because there are hundreds of fabricated aluminum items of various types and qualities, no general price average can be given for the fabricated items, officials have explained.

The price proposed by OPS officials, it was reported tonight, was raised to 1½ cents a pound for ingots and to 7 per cent for badges were promptly forwarded for development and examination. Medical personnel took blood samples and blood pressure measurements. Statements were taken from the team members and all were sent to a hospital.

"More than three weeks after the incident, the physiological effect upon and damage to the individuals did not appear serious and their physical condition appeared satisfactory. Measurements indicated that the two physicists received more radiation than the two technicians and this was probably less than 300 roentgens."

MORSE

"written when the reactionary Republicans were in control of the convention."

"One section of the party won the platform fight while the other side won the nomination fight," Morse declared.

Morse singled out for particular criticism planks on foreign policy and civil rights. He said John Foster Dulles, GOP foreign policy leader, tried to reach middle ground between the Republican "reactionaries and those who recognize the importance of a strong mutual security program."

"I think he wrote a very poor compromise," Morse said. The Oregon Republican made the criticisms in an interview on the Mutual Broadcasting System's "Reporters' Roundup."

"I think the foreign policy plank can be best described as a zig-zag race course for political huddlers to try to jump during this campaign," Morse said. "We're taken to one side of the fence ceded to isolationists and then to the other side of the fence ceded to mutual security."

"I think we end up on the rocks," he said.

He added that he believed the Democratic Party foreign policy plank is "much stronger" because "it doesn't seek to compromise with the isolationists."

There is evidence that there was commerce between Egypt and Crete more than 6,000 years ago.

The chairman said a price hike would be aimed at increasing the production of milk by enabling farmers to buy more feed and more cows.

Describing the current drouth as the worst Georgia has experienced since 1925, Duncan said that even if the state should get heavy rains soon it would be too late to bring back parched pastures.

Dairymen, he said, already are having to buy hay to feed their cows and "can't find enough hay for love or money."

Georgia normally produces all the milk it needs during the summer months, Duncan said, but this year had to start importing milk as early as June. It is now hard to find milk anywhere outside Georgia, he added, because other states are also hard hit by the drouth.

Meanwhile, a Fulton County official said talk of a milk shortage is exaggerated. This comment came from H. W. Anderson, chief of the milk section, engineering division, Fulton County Department of Health.

Anderson said shipments of milk into the Atlanta area from Indiana have counteracted what shortage exists.

He declared the shortage should not be any more critical in August than in July, and that there would be no shortage "as far as the consumer is concerned." Buttermilk will be the first hit because it is a by-product of fluid milk and less in demand, he added.

Anderson said what shortage now exists in this area is caused by three factors: (1) many cows won't begin to freshen until early September; (2) the drouth; (3) milk distributor plants here are selling in ever wider areas, including Rome, Macon and Newnan.

The Fulton official said as of July 1 there were 65,000 gallons of milk coming into Atlanta from 47 Georgia counties and since July 5 there have been three shipments of 2,500 gallons each from Bluffton, Ind. Between July 5 and July 30, a total of 1,625,000 gallons came into Atlanta, including 7,500 gallons imported from Indiana, or less than four per cent imported.

Tug To Haul Dredge From U.S. to Indonesia

BALTIMORE, July 31—It's going to be a long haul for the tugboat Tyne.

The Dutch tug is going to latch on a 1,200-ton dredge here this week end and pull it to Indonesia. It is expected to take two to three months to travel across the Atlantic and through the Suez Canal. The 160-foot dredge is one of nine built here for the Indonesian Republic. It will be used to deepen the harbor of Djakarta, the Indonesian capital.

MOBILE, Ala., July 31—(INS)—Two Navy trainer planes collided during a thunderstorm this afternoon and one craft plunged into a swampy area near Weeks Bay, 30 miles east of Mobile.

One of the planes involved flew back to its base at Sauley Field, near Pensacola, Fla. Rescue units spotted the wreckage of the other from the air and a detachment of ground personnel was sent into the densely wooded area.

The Navy would not say how many were aboard the downed plane. It was of a type which generally carries an instructor and student.

Authorities at Pensacola said a helicopter was sent into the crash area after a report that the pilot parachuted from the plane after the collision.

Vienna's latest effort is aimed at getting the case before the UN General Assembly when it opens in October, out of which Austria would hope to bring the pressure of the organization and world opinion for the evacuation of the occupation armies.

In addition to delivering notes to the foreign offices, Austrian officials are also taking their case directly to the UN members. Karl Gruber, Austrian foreign minister, is doing it in the course of a state visit to Brazil, and Dr. Clemens Wildner, director of the political department, is visiting India, Pakistan, and several Middle Eastern countries as a missionary for his government's appeal to the United Nations.

KNOW YOUR GEORGIA By C. J. Holleran

Georgia Had Two 'Carpetbag' Governors

The notorious Gov. Rufus Bullock was the state's No. 1 Carpetbagger. His reign as Georgia's chief executive in post Civil War days was characterized by acts of infamy. Few people, however, know that when Bullock suddenly resigned and fled the state in 1871 he was succeeded by another carpetbagger. His successor was a character by the name of Benjamin Conley. Conley came to Augusta from Newark, N. J., before the war. He was hospitably received and later was elected mayor of the city. When the South seceded, Conley went into hiding in the wilds of Alabama. When peace was declared, he returned to Augusta, a loud and enthusiastic advocate of the Congressional Plan of Reconstruction. (This plan, it will be remembered, was really designed to reduce the South to a state of adject poverty and serfdom under the iron heel of Northern military dictatorship.) Under the direction of the Federal Government, Conley was "elected" president of the State Senate and became Georgia's No. 2 carpetbagger governor when Bullock decided the climate of his native New York was essential to his health.

"Sixty-year-old man asks police to find his thirty-year-old wife. 'She just walked off and said nothing,' he reported."—News item.

When one has lived a bit too long . . . he sings a melancholy song . . . in minor chords, with doleful themes . . . and is too much engaged with dreams . . . of former days, and that is why . . . as one grows older, he should try . . . to think more of what lies ahead . . . and let the past inter its dead.

That's hard to do, I must admit . . . yet there is little benefit . . . to be derived as we contrast . . . the present with the "glorious past" . . . Strange as it seems, unpleasant things . . . are soon forgotten, all "the slings . . . and arrows" of misfortune's store . . . are gone and trouble us no more . . . but shining brighter than the sun . . . is any victory we won . . . and any small success we had . . . will overshadow what was bad.

That's also why, (as people say) . . . "December shouldn't mate with May" . . . there's too much difference in the weather . . . for two such folks to live together.

Mirror of Your Mind

Do retarded children have strange tastes?

Answer: Yes, report Drs. Paul Neveu and G. Unterreiner in the (French) Annals of Medical Psychology. When eleven children whose mental age was approximately half their calendar age were asked to judge which of six drawings of a woman's head they considered pretty and which ugly, they classed the ugly ones as pretty and vice versa. The authors suggest no explanation except that preference for ugliness is a "personality trait" but one wonders whether children who themselves have long been treated as abnormals may not have a "fel-low feeling" for an ugly person, unconsciously recognizing still another victim of the world's rejection.

CITY HALL NEWS

Verdict Due Monday on Wire Shift

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Final action to clear the way for improving Marietta St. in Atlanta's financial district is scheduled for City Council Monday.

The action will determine whether Council's public works committee or the Atlanta Transit Company will do the work, which consists of shifting overhead trackless trolley wires along the street to permit curb, instead of mid-street, loadings.

This proposed change has been preceded by a resurfacing and sidewalk widening program begun months ago. It is designed to improve traffic movement and ease travel for pedestrians.

Meanwhile, the public works committee was asked by Company President Leland Anderson to do the work. The company agreed to pay $50,000 to the city if it would complete the work under contract and meet specifications.

However, Anderson said the company would do the work if the city paid all costs over the $50,000 mark. If construction costs ran under $50,000, the company would pay the city the difference, he explained.

Public works committee chairman Dowse Donaldson predicted Council would approve the proposals.

Company engineers have estimated the cost of the change would be $85,898. City Electrical Superintendent Dewey Johnson predicted the cost to be $51,822.

Previously, City Construction Chief Clarke Donaldson said the city would immediately assume responsibility for maintaining the four lane highway from the city limits at the Chattahoochee River.

Dust, Odors

The National Leadworks Co. will spend $40,000 to eliminate dust and disagreeable odors from its plant at 400 Bishop St., N. W., Attorney A. C. Latimer said Thursday.

City Building Inspector William Wofford had previously asked City Attorney Jack Savage to take steps to halt the odors and Wofford said nearby residents had complained for a long time.

More Class Space

The double session at the R. L. Hope School will be eliminated next fall because additional classroom space has been made available by the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist Church, Miss Ira Jarrell, school superintendent, said Thursday.

First and second graders will be transferred to the new classrooms by an Atlanta Transit Co. bus, Miss Jarrell said.

The school will have to pay only for maintenance on the loaned quarters, she added. They will be used until new facilities can be provided from the $7,010,000 expansion program planned by the state building authority.

Forrester Requests Support on Fescue

Special to The Constitution

More Students for GSCW Urged by Rep. Parker

By WALTER WHITE
Constitution Staff Writer

MILLEDGEVILLE, July 31—Baldwin County Rep. Arnold Parker Thursday urged adoption of a program to double enrollment at Georgia State College for Women as the two-day meeting of newly elected legislators here drew to a close.

Representative Parker also said he would draft legislation "sometime in the future" for a state-wide, state-subsidized recreation program.

No legislation would be introduced at the next session of the legislature to increase GSCW's enrollment, Parker said. That would be left up to the University System's Board of Regents, he added.

Earlier, GSCW President Guy Wells told the legislators that the college could "easily handle" twice the number of enrolled students, which is about 700 during a regular academic year.

CO-EDUCATION PROPOSED

One representative-elect suggested that GSCW be made coeducational to increase the enrollment. However, he said he wasn't planning any legislation to that effect.

The legislators—newly elected state senators and representatives—were invited to Milledgeville by Representative Parker and Representative-Elect Bob Green to inspect Milledgeville State Hospital, GSCW and Boys Training School.

After touring the state hospital and hearing an address by Gov. Herman Talmadge Wednesday, the legislators toured GSCW and nearby Boys Training School Thursday.

The legislators were "deeply impressed" with their tour of GSCW, which was guided by President Wells and Comptroller G. H. Dewberry, Parker said.

They were also impressed with the physical plant and program at Boys Training School, he said.

CALL SCHOOLS ADEQUATE

The freshmen legislators were unanimous in estimating both GSCW and the Training School adequate.

After touring the school, Parker announced he would institute legislation to provide for a state-wide recreational program to nip juvenile delinquency in the bud.

"Boys Training School is doing a magnificent job rehabilitating wayward boys," he said, "but the problem lies deeper. We must provide recreational facilities in every community in the state to stamp out delinquency before it starts."

Parker said the recreation program was still in planning stages, but that he would introduce legislation toward that end in the future.

The freshmen legislators were guided in their tour of the Training School by a group of students and by Director Bill Ireland.

BOYS GET NEW START

Ireland told the group that only about six per cent of the boys rehabilitated ever get in trouble again. The present enrollment is a little over 300, he added.

At a luncheon which concluded the meeting Representative Parker told the legislators: "These fine institutions belong to the people of Georgia, not just to Baldwin County."

Approximately 75 freshmen senators and representatives were present at the meeting. Thursday night, Governor Talmadge outlined some problems facing them when the legislature convenes.

The tour of the state hospital, which preceded the governor's speech, was climaxed by an announcement by Representatives Parker and Green that they would fight for shorter hours and more pay for the hospital employees.

The hours of the hospital employees are "shockingly long" and their pay is inadequate, they said.

LUENEBERG, Germany, July 31—A nightgown made of explosive guncotton was blamed for the death today of Ella Dobrich, a 47-year-old German housewife. The nightgown went ablaze suddenly after Frau Dobrich went to bed last Sunday, police said. They theorized that a stray spark from the kitchen set it off. Police are searching for the shop that sold the shirt.

How it feels to lose

The face of defeat has rarely been so eloquently recorded as in this picture of Estes Kefauver, played-out and glassy-eyed with fatigue—as his party nominates another man.

Just as eloquent are the other faces you'll see in LIFE's complete Democratic convention story this week... the intensity of nominee Stevenson... the perspiring indignation of keynoter Dever... the benignity of stateswoman Roosevelt.

In a superb gallery of candid portraits, the tension and tears and triumph come alive for you with a vividness you could experience in no other way.

Even more sharply than in LIFE's memorable report on the Republican convention, these 14 pages show how in LIFE you get a whole dramatic, meaningful story through the faces and gestures of the men and women who are that story's featured players.

It's this special way of making and choosing pictures and pointing them up with words that makes LIFE's treatment of the news more informative, more exciting, more fun to read. Don't miss out on LIFE this week, or any week.

Building Activity Here Nears Record for Values

Construction valued at $22,172,036 was authorized for the first seven months of the year, an increase of $2,598,810 for the corresponding period last year, William R. Wofford, city building inspector, said Thursday.

Wofford said that settlement of the steel strike and a general upsurge in home construction may set a new all-time record for building values.

He pointed out the previous record was $48,000,000 in 1950.

As books closed for July, three structures, with a combined total of $1,172,000, were authorized. These were the Thomas K. Ohio Will Railroad Sisters Back Here

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 31 (AP)—Two Atlanta sisters arrested while sitting on a railroad track will be returned to Georgia.

Municipal Judge Frank Wiley said today he would take that action in the case of Miss Palestine Jarrell, 62, and Miss Allison Jarrell, 55.

They were arrested Tuesday night in Toledo Central Union Terminal. They refused yesterday to leave their jail cell for a hearing on disturbance charges. Judge Wiley removed the charges and the court will take no formal action against the sisters.

When arrested, and again in the jail, the sisters insisted that only God could tell them what to do. They prayed and sang hymns most of the time they were in jail.

The sisters, who said they were on their way to Toronto, Ont., to buy a farm, were carrying $8,132 in cash and a $4,262 cash certificate. Police said they have about $16,500 more in Atlanta banks. It was inherited from their father.

Georgia Guardsmen Win Praise

By JACK GILCHRIST

Constitution Staff Writer

FT. McLELLAN, Ala., July 31. Through an intense pride in their individual units, the officers and men of the 121st Infantry Regiment have brought recognition to their outfit as one of the finest in Georgia's 48th National Guard Division.

Sparking the high morale of the unit are a number of contests in which the various units compete against each other for trophies.

These contests, emerged in a thorough training program, excite the interest of each individual and is credited by the regimental commander, Col. Roy Hogan, as responsible for the high morale the regiment enjoys.

ATTENDANCE TROPHY

Four of the companies are boasting 100 per cent attendance at summer camp this year. Col. Hogan says he is having to buy three additional trophies in view of the fact the four companies tied for the attendance prize.

During the first week here the training program of the 121st has received a good bit of praise from regular Army inspectors. Col. Hogan thinks that this will be one of the most successful summer camps in which the unit has ever participated.

MACON MAYOR

Mayor Lewis Wilson of Macon, where the regimental headquarters is located, is expected to arrive Friday for a two-day visit with the regiment. Col. Hogan and his regimental executive, Lt. Col. The girls told police that the man forced his way into the apartment and told the girls they had been selected to wear his company's underwear "for advertising purposes." He demanded they take off their clothes "so I can measure you for the underwear," the girls added.

Musical Teeth Cut At 'Pops'

By YOLANDE GWIN

College and high school students from various sections of greater Atlanta are cutting their theatrical teeth this summer amid the glare of brilliant footlights.

They are members of the choir of the Atlanta "pops" and according to Albert Coleman, director, "they want to sing all night and I have to shoo them home."

Rehearsals on Tuesday and Thursday nights for Sunday afternoon concert performances find the youngsters eager to test their vocal cords.

Here are some personal notes collected between musical notes on a few of the choir members.

George Ross, a senior at the Atlanta Division, is going to make music his career and is getting his "practical experience" from his pops work.

Nancy Cash, a member of the Junior class at Bass High School, said she has been studying piano for nine years. She plays for the Southeast Christian Church.

When friends suggested that she get experience behind the footlights she joined the choir and became a songbird.

Jackie Watkins, a 10th grader at the Druid Hills School, has inherited some "voice culture" from her uncle, Carlton Miller. After a whirlwind one-week vacation in Florida she chose to work for the rest of the season.

Music is the real hobby of Mary Reector. She's in the First Methodist Church choir and was in the North Fulton High School chorus. School time finds her "chortling" at the University of Georgia.

Hiram Greer joined the choir for two reasons. First, he thinks it good to work with a group, and second, he's chosen singing as a career.

Charles Clack has his voice tuned toward a teaching note in public school music, and glee club work. Just out of the Army, he will teach at McDonough High School in the fall.

Another tuned to a glee club key is Betty Scott who is studying voice and is a member of the University of Georgia Glee Club.

LOOK ALIKE? Many who see Mrs. Perry Johnson, East Point, right, are startled by her resemblance to Queen Elizabeth II of England, left. Friends of Mrs. Johnson, also cognizant of the likeness of the two women, have urged here to duplicate as far as possible the clothes worn by Her Majesty. But Mrs. Johnson's answer is always the same: "I admire the Queen, but I prefer being myself."

There's Magic in Mirrors, Make Short Rooms Tall

More and more homemakers are learning what the magicians have long known—that there's magic in mirrors.

All things to all rooms, mirrors can pinch hit for pictures, cover up bad spots in the wall or add extra height or width to a room.

If there's a TV viewing problem in the living room, a mirror hung facing the television screen makes it possible for those at both sides of the room to see the picture.

If a room has a long squat look due to a low ceiling, a mirror hung vertically on a side wall will give the illusion of added height.

Mirrors are also good at brightening a dark, bare foyer. Hung over an old bench, a console table or a book shelf, they give this small room an inviting air. Homemakers whose apartments are furnished with hand-me-downs will find a new decorative mirror gives a needed lift to a hodge-podge of old pieces. A long-legged dresser with its small attached mirror can be whittled to modern proportions by sawing off the legs, detaching the mirror and replacing it with a new shadow box mirror.

Celestine Sibley Analysis Before Deadline Time

The courthouse, they said, was in the hot weather doldrums. Except for a flurry of business in Civil Court where a lot of people, doubtlessly dogged into it by the heat, were suing each other, there wasn't much news.

So we sat in the press room—the ugly little corner room where hundreds of Atlanta newspaper reporters have sat and worked and loafed and squabbled since 1913.

And presently the room began to exert its subtle influence on us and we were aware, as you occasionally are, of how surely a room bears the stamp of the people who have inhabited it through the years. They may not leave much of their own and yet there are little things. . . .

The press room in the Fulton County Courthouse must be very like press rooms in public buildings the world over. They are not designed for comfort or for beauty.

They are utilitarian little rooms with indifferent cream walls and mahogany woodwork, a battered old desk or two and the kind of old horse typewriters that generations of general assignment reporters have abused in the office before they are put out to pasture with the beat men.

The afternoon sun slanted in through one of the two big windows, making prisms of the dust motes in the air and picking out the skin tones of the nude lady on the bondsmen's calendar in the locker. We grinned to ourselves at the modesty of courthouse reporters who put a staid old L. & N. calendar on the wall for all to see but hide the naked lady in the locker for occasional esoteric glimpses.

There were other things in the locker and we brooded over them: A businesslike little whiskey keg, now empty, left over from the days when a genial alcoholic covered the courthouse. A girdle left by some long-gone and forgotten reporter who must have felt its pinch while she sat through an interminably county commission meeting or a trial.

We wondered if it could have belonged to a long-haired, husky-voiced dame who flashed across the courthouse beat like a meteor before she went on to Washington and new triumphs.

A pair of mud-colored galoshes and with a start we recognized them as our own. They must have been there eight or 10 years since a rainy night when we accompanied the county police to a hot-killing where a farmer's wife had shot her husband.

A listless raincoat or two drooped in the locker and we returned our attention to the desk. It held the usual litter of newspapers and copy paper, a directory or two, a dictionary which was plainly stolen from one of the old Georgian's artists back in the '30s. And on top of it all a sprinkling of Mickey Spillane murder mysteries.

If you were a detective or a philosopher you might take what is in that little room and analyze it like Dr. Herman Jones studying the contents of a human stomach or the lint out of the lining of a coat pocket, and you'd have quite a story.

But unfortunately, we realized, glancing at the clock over the florist shop across the street, it would not be the kind of story city editors cry for. And first edition deadline was coming up.

Richardson Nuptials Are Solemnized

RICHLAND, July 31.—The First Baptist Church here formed the setting for the marriage of Miss Etta Sue Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest W. SOB STUFF

My husband says, with a patient sigh, "The strangest things make a woman cry. You never know if the news is sad or something happened to make her glad. She'll cry at a wedding or in the show. And, like I say, you will never know whether the reason be grief or joy. You can't explain it to man or boy. But when she cries, son, it's wise to let her. For when she is through, she always feels better!"

Learning Travels On Wheels

By JEAN THRASHER

"Parnassus on Wheels" is not just a book on the library shelves to residents of Fulton County. It's bringing the library shelves to their doorsteps—in modern terminology it's called the bookmobile.

The bookmobile, which at present is a station wagon, is sponsored by the Fulton County Department of the Atlanta Public Library, headed by Miss Martha Worsham.

MAKES 100 STOPS

According to Miss Worsham the bookmobile has a regular route with over 100 stops. The entire route is covered every two days in the summertime. The stops are at filling stations, stores, houses and public parks in areas where libraries are inaccessible.

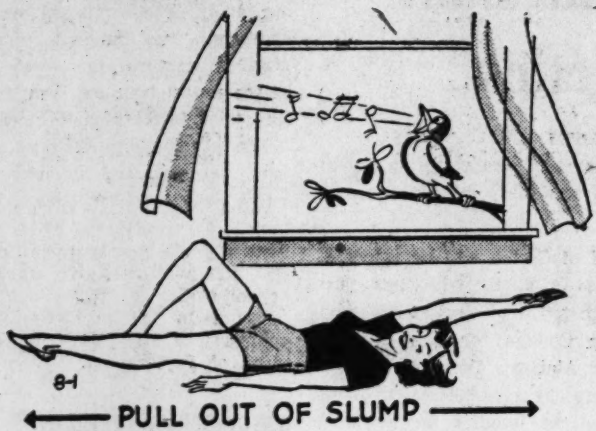

Often the people wanting books walk as far as two miles to meet the bookmobile. In the summer most of the customers are children who are reading the 10 books required for a certificate issued by the Atlanta Public Library. In the winter the statistics are reversed—mostly adults come to borrow books.

The Fulton County Department has a private collection of over 23 thousand volumes. These books represent almost every type of fiction and nonfiction.

LIBRARIAN AIDS CHILDREN

Among the younger readers animal stories are probably the most popular says Miss Worsham. As a special aid to vacationing schoolchildren the bookmobile always has a librarian who is trained to select just the right book for the child's reading level and interests.

This special "library on wheels," a service which started five years ago, lends 350 to 600 books a day. A printed schedule of stops is distributed in the schools.

Natural Summer Exercise Is a Morning Stretch

By IDA JEAN KAIN

This August, it's debatable which will make us hotter under the collar... politics or the weather.

If it is cool where you are, and the air is brisk and crisp... go right ahead with calisthenics, whittle inches off the waist, and slim pounds off the hips.

But on a hot, humid day, the air is heavy with moisture. Vigorous exercise is out of the question. The solution is stretching... Outside of swimming, stretching is the only natural exercise tuned to hot weather.

Morning stretching movements are wonderfully rewarding. Follow with a shower, not too cold, for that stimulates the body to get up steam. A lukewarm shower or bath is the most refreshing.

Protect Cords

Most electrical repair shops report that their biggest business is in repairing damaged cords. They advise never using an appliance at full cord's length from the outlet. There should be a slight "give" in the cord so it won't be strained and wear out sooner where it's attached to the appliance.

Let a hot appliance cool before you wrap the cord around it, and always wrap the cord in loose coils. Cords should be protected from grease and dampness, also.

MARY HAWORTH

Husband Deserts Trials, Responsibilities of Home

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a married woman, 30, mother of two children—the elder is 3, the younger seven months. I am at my wits' end about my husband.

All he has done lately is tell me how terribly I've treated him. He shows no joy or interest in the children. And now he has left me for a month's separation.

I admit to many faults and mistakes in marriage. I asked him to come back and let us start anew, never referring to the past. He says he will never come halfway.

He offers money for the children's and my support for a month and says at the end will have to ask the Court of Domestic Relations to determine the amount of maintenance.

P. A.

DEAR P. A.:

Henry, let's call him, is trying to outrun a nervous breakdown going AWOL from the trials of supporting a growing household. I gather that the second baby, a guilty impulse to reject his dependents.

Instead of admitting that he is proved weak and disloyal in the role of family head, Henry is making you the scapegoat for his shortcomings.

As I see the picture, Henry has no intention of coming back, whether he knows it or not. At best he is trying to ease the shock for you.

Don't panic. Keep your chin up, believe in your worth. You are still on the job and Henry is not, which shows that you are a better parent and partner than he. Don't try to make sense of his haggling. Get in touch with the Legal Aid Bureau, or the Family Service Society, for guidance and help in coping with Henry's problem behavior.

Summer Meals Demand More Thought, Attention

By AGNES REASOR OLMSTEAD

Planning meals to satisfy hot weather appetites is not the easiest job in the world. Actually meals in summer demand more attention and thought than at any other season. Diet studies repeatedly show summer diets to be less nutritious than in winter. It is an erroneous idea that we need less food in hot weather. The human body is the same machine year 'round and requires just as much nourishment.

The trick is to serve these foods in the coolest, most easily prepared, eye-appealing manner possible. Cold meats may replace roasts, raw vegetables on relish trays or in salads will take the place of hot ones, all the summer fruits make their serving only a matter of minutes.

As long as the family has to eat, better sit in a cool place and plan the meals now. Planning ahead eliminates a lot of last-minute worry and work, too.

WE ARE 99 and 96/100ths PER CENT PERFECT

During the month of June, over 280 Constitution carrier boys in Metropolitan Atlanta failed to deliver 642 papers. That's an average of about 25 papers per day. Since our carrier boys are delivering 70,036 Constitutions in the city every morning, that means our failures were only .0347 per cent. So that makes us 99 and 96/100ths per cent perfect.

We know how irritating it is to have something happen to your morning paper. When you look for it each morning on your doorstep—and it isn't there—it upsets your whole day. Most likely you're mad about it, and we don't blame you for being put out.

However, we want you to know that we are always trying to give you the kind of service to which you are entitled. You've got a right to expect it. More than 280 carrier boys—supervisors—district managers—are all at work every day—hot or cold—rain or shine—to see that your Constitution is waiting on your doorstep each morning when you expect it. If it isn't, call WALnut 5050 and tell us about it. We'll see that you get your paper, and quick.

On Sunday, somehow, we are not so good—only 99 and 88/100ths per cent perfect. We missed 394 homes on Sundays in June. We're going to improve on that.

Movies in Review

F-Family A-Adult

By PAUL JONES

Sophisticated minds and those not too keen on the treasures—modern and old—of the literary world will beat a path to Loew's Grand Theater during the next week to see one of the most splendid movies of recent years. MGM's Technicolor production of Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe" is a masterpiece.

Elizabeth Taylor

For, here is a great picture. It has Academy Award written all over it—in the masterful transition from printed page to celluloid, in the expert characterizations by its able cast, in the Technicolor photography, in the gorgeous musical score which makes the action on the screen seem more realistic. In every way "Ivanhoe" is the No. 1 contender for the coveted Oscar for 1952. No other picture this year has matched it for brilliance or scope.

Tremendous throngs which overran the seating capacity at Loew's early Thursday showed clearly that "Ivanhoe" is a movie which will appeal to all age groups. Children will revel in the gallant individual combats and the spectacular sequences in which armies storm the walls of the ancient British castle. The tender romantic episodes will set feminine hearts aflutter. And the historic episodes to restore King Richard to the throne which his brother, John, has seized, will rekindle in the minds of Atlantans passages of one of the most vivid stories ever penned.

Through judicious editing, MGM's story department has narrowed the cast to the most essential characters and the plot has been tightened up to make this film move with a swiftness we didn't see in "Quo Vadis." Yet, it has not sacrificed any of the medieval pageantry which makes this a screen masterpiece.

The principal roles are played by Robert Taylor, as Wilfred of Ivanhoe; Elizabeth Taylor, as Rebecca, the daughter of the Jewish Isaac of York; Joan Fontaine, as Rowena, the Saxon princess; George Sanders as Sir Brian De Bois Guilbert; Emlyn Williams as Wamba, the son of Witless and Guy Rolf as Prince John.

Performances by the Taylors are surprising. Neither has ever been associated seriously with the word "actor," but in "Ivanhoe" both perform with sincerity and restraint. Miss Taylor's Rebecca is one of the picture's standout characterizations. Sanders, as the boasting warrior and Rolf as the spineless prince are especially noteworthy. "F" classification.

POWER FAILURES

Towing of French Liner Viewed in Symbolic Light

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.

Associated Press News Analyst

Sidelight: a picture on the front page of the New York Times of a tug, flying the U. S. flag, towing the brand-new French liner Flandre into port after a power failure on her maiden voyage. Next column, a headline: "French imply loss of Indochina war if U. S. limits aid." Just below, a headline:

"Churchill slows rearmament pace." Secretary Acheson said Congress just didn't supply the money for more foreign aid. There are all sorts of temporary power failures, but nobody doubts the eventual servicerility of the Flandre.

Chinese Nationalist sources on Formosa, which maintain liaison with anti-Communist forces on the mainland, reported even before the big raid of July 31 that stepped up Allied bombing in Korea had a heavy military and psychological impact.

SCANT IMPACT

But they don't seem to have had any great impact on the Communist truce negotiating team at Panmunjom. The Reds continue to stall around about words in the proposed agreement which were supposed to have been settled long ago. There is no sign of any compromise of the big war prisoner question.

Gen. Van Fleet, commander of the U. N. armies in the field, said there is "less chance for an armistice than ever before."

Some other observers cling to the feeling of the last few weeks that, at last, the Communists might be intending to reach an agreement. But there seemed to be little more for them to go on than was the case a year ago.

The recent disposition to rehash proves that the Reds consider even the so-called "agreed" points to be highly tentative. Van Fleet says they have disposed their armies so that they can "wait out the war." Since last November they have been able to avoid large-scale fighting and still not retreat from either political or military positions.

Van Fleet repeats that the best way for the Allies to win "is by pressure." The Air Force says the latest raid, preceded by repeated warnings to civilians to evacuate, was a calculated effort to put on pressure at Panmunjom.

There have been "leaks," correct or incorrect, that American forces in Korea now have atomic artillery with which to meet any possible new Communist ground offensive. There have been warnings that aerial assault on Allied ground forces would invite retaliation on Red air bases in Manchuria. But there is doubt, in the event of a resumption of general fighting, of Allied ability to push to the Chinese border, the one position from which they would be able to force a settlement.

Short of this, there is one remaining pressure which has not been used. That is the threat, well advertised in advance, of atom bombing, directed against military targets even though they might not be strategically worth it, with plenty of notice to civilian populations.

After all, though conventional bombs did their duty in Tokyo and Berlin, the only bombings which ever brought a war to a sudden stop occurred just seven years ago in Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Atlantan Cites Anti-Polio Progress

An Atlanta physician said here Thursday that "definite progress" has been made in the fight by research scientists to eradicate or control polio.

Dr. William F. Friedewald, former professor of bacteriology at Emory University who was until recently in charge of the polio ward at Grady Hospital, said he was "hopeful" that the answer to the crippling disease would be found in the next few years.

Addressing the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce at the YMCA, Dr. Friedewald said the three main attacks are:

1. To develop an antibiotic that will kill the polio virus.
2. To develop a vaccine that will build up immunity to polio.

7,090 Polio Cases Reported

WASHINGTON, July 31—The Public Health Service reported Thursday that 7,090 Americans have been stricken with infantile paralysis this year.

This total was only 3 1/2 per cent below the figure for the same period in the "epidemic" year of 1949.

The agency announced the new 1952 total in reporting 1,666 new cases recorded last week. This was a new weekly high for the year and well above the five-year average.

Officials frankly conceded they were at a loss to predict when this year's polio peak will be reached. They also refused to predict the year's total.

The polio peak normally is reached in late August or early September.

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

3. To reduce or prevent paralysis by injections of gamma globulin, a blood fraction.

Dr. Friedewald said there still is no known antibiotic which will kill the polio virus without destroying the cell, but he stressed the search is continuing.

He said a vaccine incorporating three strains of the polio virus had "worked very nicely" in monkeys. He added the vaccine now is being tested in humans.

Dr. Friedewald said gamma globulin is being injected in large numbers of children in an effort to destroy the polio virus before it reaches the brain and causes paralysis. He stressed it would be a year or more, however, before the value of the injections would be known.

Dr. Friedewald said there is no way in which to isolate a child from the polio virus, and he expressed his belief that the closing of swimming pools or movie theaters during polio epidemics has "very little value."

The doctor pointed out that of every 100 persons infected with the polio virus, 90 will show no symptoms of the disease. Yet these people are carriers, he said, and may infect others.

Dr. Friedewald said whether or not a person has polio probably depends on his immunity to the disease. But he said chilling and fatigue should be avoided because evidence shows they often precede the paralytic type of polio. He suggested that children be permitted to stay in a swimming pool no longer than 45 minutes or an hour.

The physician said polio probably is transmitted by "person-to-person" contact. He said it was most contagious before its symptoms appear and before it is diagnosed.

Dr. Friedewald said facilities for the care of polio patients now are "excellent, thanks to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis."
